First Phase Of Military Action Over, Dutch Say

Officials Indicate They Will Center Effort on Creating New Government

Batavia, Java, July 25 (AP).—The Dutch declared today they virtually had completed the first phase of their military operations in Java, and Dutch officials indicated they now were turning to political consolidation of their position through organization of a new Indonesian government.

Acting Gov. Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook declared that the institution of what he described as a "regular government" would occur as soon as possible so that the Dutch, in cooperation with the Indonesians, could work toward formation of a United States of Indonesia.

Give No Sign of Quitting

High Republican circles in the Indonesian capital of Jogjakarta gave no sign, however, that the forces of the republic were preparing to abandon the fight. While foreseeing the possibility that the Dutch would gain control of the main part of Java, these informants insisted the Indonesians would render the Dutch position continuously precarious with guerilla warfare.

Van Mook's statement came after other Dutch sources said their tank and plane supported troops were rushing to isolate the Indonesian Republican stronghold of central Java from the rich rice-producing eastern and western ends of the island.

"From a military standpoint there is hardly any resistance worth the name," declared the Dutch communique, which listed 32 killed in Netherlands forces from the start of military action.

Reports Enthusiasm

The communique declared that at places in west and east Java the soldiers had been "greeted with enthusiasm."

The communique said Dutch troops advanced over burnt-over ground through six west Java towns in the neighborhood of Tjikampek, 50 miles east of Batavia, and Bandoeng, 75 miles southeast of there.

Indonesian forces, a Republican army communique said, entered the north Java coastal city of Semarang—the starting point of the Dutch advance toward Jogjakarta which the Indonesians previously had claimed was thrown back.

Possible by January 1, 1949

Van Mook declared that construction of the United States of Indonesia was still possible by January 1, 1949, or soon thereafter. This is the original date The Netherlands promised to grant sovereignty to the United States of Indonesia.

An Indonesian announcement said a half battalion of volunteer "foreign soldiers" had joined the

Third Break-in At Same Station Costs 180 Days

In Municipal Court yesterday, Henry G. Barrett, 34, of Takoma Park, Md., promised that never again would he go near a filling station at 6403 Blair rd. nw.—but the promise came too late.

In 1937, Barrett broke into the station and spent 18 months in prison for the burglary. He again entered the station in March, police said, and was placed under $3000 bond for housebreaking and the larceny of $75 in cash and $242 in auto parts.

On Thursday, according to police, Barrett made his third visit to the station, and broke open a cigarette machine there. Judge Armond Scott gave Barrett 180 days in jail for destroying private property in the cigarette machine case.

Beginning Sunday: Sandburg's Analysis Of Lincoln Letters

Starting in Sunday's Washington Post, Carl Sandburg, distinguished Lincoln biographer, writes his own evaluation of the 15,000 or more hitherto-secret Lincoln letters being opened this afternoon at the Library of Congress.

World famous for his books on Lincoln, including the Pulitzer prizewinning "Abraham Lincoln: The War Years," Mr. Sandburg will tell what new light, if any, the letters shed on Lincoln's personality, his private affairs or his historic stature. Gross Swindle, Declares Krug Of Hughes Party Expense List

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug yesterday charged that expense accounts of a Howard Hughes aircraft official listing Krug as attending lavish New York night club parties "are a swindle of the grossest kind."

Krug was furnished copies of the expense accounts of John Meyer, publicity agent of Hughes, by the Senate War Investigating Committee in advance of hearings starting Monday.

The Interior Secretary said even his preliminary study of the accounts shows that he can prove he was not at some of the parties at which Meyer's expense accounts place him.

In a formal statement, King said:

"The expense account vouchers now being circulated in Washington from an unannounced source and purporting to represent the expenditures of John Meyer, are a swindle of the grossest kind.

"My personal records are not voluminous and detailed enough to demonstrate all the inaccuracies and misrepresentations.

"A few will indicate the mendacity of the accounts which have been photostated and released to the press.

"One photostated, published, expense report carries the notation for New York City of Monday, October 14-46. Entertainment for J. A. Krug, $100.' On October 14, 1946, I was in Washington, D. C., at my office. I had arrived from a departmental inspection trip in the West at 3:30 a. m., that morning, spent the day at the Department of the Interior, the night at my house, and was back at my office at 9 a. m. on the morning of the 15th.

"Another expense report of Meyer's for December 18, 1946, lists expenses of a dinner and entertainment for Gov. Mon Wallgren of Washington and myself at the Restaurant Robert in New York City. I have never been in the restaurant, have never had dinner with Governor Wallgren and Meyer, and while I have dined with Governor Wallgren frequently, have never done so in New York.

"A report, apparently not yet circulated, shows expenditures by Meyer for entertaining me at the Kentucky Derby, in Louisville, Ky., on June 8 and 9, 1945. I was in Cabniet meetings in Washington on June 8 and at my office at the War Production Board in

Last-Day Jam Perils Police Probe Efforts

Fate of Senate Resolution to Be Decided Today

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

A Majority Policy Committee meeting today will decide the fate of a Senate resolution seeking investigation of Washington police.

But majority leaders said there was small hope that the District investigation would be given priority through the jam of national legislation still awaiting action on the last day of the session.

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), who was one of three sponsors of the resolution after The Washington Post exposed the Detective Bureau's practice of hiding crime complaints, said he would keep trying.

"I think the history of the situation," he said, "is the strongest argument I have heard for giving the people of the District some form of home rule."

Ball said he disliked most:

"First, the way the District Commissioner (John Russell Young) brushed off the disclosure" of hidden crime complaints which resulted in a far better police efficiency record than the facts warranted.

"Second, the way the Chief of Police (Robert J. Barrett) was able to get 1 out of 96 Senators to block the people of the District from getting the facts of the situation."

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), who objected to passage of the resolution Thursday when unanimous consent of the Senate was needed for approval, said he would keep on objecting.

Senator Johnston, the only member of the Senate District Committee who was present when Chief of Detectives Barrett was sworn as police superintendent in Commissioner Young's office July 1, repeated yesterday that his blocking of the investigation was "best for the District citizens."

If the Senate fails to approve the resolution at this session, the measure will remain on the calendar for consideration at the next session.

Stassen Crosses Dewey Trail on Way to Warren

Plan to Discuss '48 Situation With Calif. Governor Causes Stir

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 25.—Harold E. Stassen, only avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for President, crossed the trail of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York in this old frontier town today, and caused something of a political sensation.

Stassen told reporters he was on his way to San Francisco to "discuss the 1948 situation" with Gov. Earl Warren of California.

"Things are going very well," Stassen said at the Union Pacific Terminal, a block from the hotel in which Governor Dewey was resting. "I am very much encouraged by developments in the West."

Stassen's announcement that he was on his way to talk to Governor Warren was regarded as a bold challenge to Governor Dewey. Ordinarily it might even be regarded as an attempt to launch a "stop-Dewey" movement. However, Warren has said he won't be associated with a "stop-anybody" movement.

Warren Won't Say

Governor Dewey wanted Warren as his vice presidential running mate in '44, but had to take Governor (now Senator) John Bricker of Ohio when Warren declined. He has done a number of things recently to indicate that he would like to have the big California Governor on the GOP ticket in '48, provided he himself captured the No. 1 place at Philadelphia next June.

Warren has steadfastly refused to commit himself this time. Some of his friends said at the Governor's Conference in Salt Lake City recently that he had a good reason for keeping quiet. The reason: A hunch that the Philadelphia convention next June may become deadlocked, and that the lightning strike him for the presidential nomination.

Stassen, in this train-side interview with reporters today, refused to elaborate on his statement that he was going to see Governor Warren about the "1948 situation."

Shrugs off Questions

Was he going to talk about a possible Stassen-Warren ticket? a reporter wanted to know. Or possibly a Warren-Stassen ticket?

The former Minnesota Governor shrugged off the questions with a smile.

Stassen said that in San Francisco he would attend the Bohemian Grove party, talk to business

Senators Among 300 Families In Apartments Without Water

More than 300 units comprising the upper floors of the fashionable Westchester Apartments, 39th st. and Cathedral ave. nw., have been without water since 11 p. m. Thursday. Eight Republican Senators live in the apartment development.

Water department and building engineers worked all day yesterday, but had not been able to find the trouble.

Arthur J. Harnett, manager of the Westchester, said water department men were still working last night and that the water supply "would be all right" by 7 a. m. today.

Harnett said he had heard several theories as to the cause of the trouble, but cared to advance none himself.

The water was originally turned off Thursday night so that an additional fire line could be installed in the buildings. When it was turned on again at 7 a. m. yesterday, only the residents on the lower floors were able to get any.

Among the occupants without water are diplomats, Washington socialites and Government figures.

The Senators are Raymond E. Baldwin (Conn.), C. Wayland Brooks (Ill.), C. Douglass Buck (Del), Homer Ferguson (Mich.), Harry P. Cain (Wash.), Wayne Morse (Oreg.), Alexander Wiley (Wis.) and Chapman Revercomb (W. Va.).

Harnett laughingly said he "guessed we don't have any Democratic Senators here."

Other prominent persons who reside at the Westchester are: Raymond Foley, Lieut. Gen. Leroy T. Lutes, Milton P. Shlesinger, Maj. Gen. Everett F. Hughes, Rear Admiral Robert O. Glover, Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court and Brig. Gen. Benjamin F. Giles.

Terms Given May, Garssons

Three Must Serve 8 to 24 Months; Judge Omits Fines On Poverty Plea

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Andrew Jackson May was sentenced yesterday to 8 to 24 months in prison, for conspiring to sell his influence when he was a Congressman.

Justice Henry A. Schweinhaut imposed the same sentence on Dr. Henry M. Garsson and his brother, Murray Garsson—the men found guilty of buying the Congressman.

May's price was set at more than $50,000 and the Garsson companies with his help—got over 78 million dollars in war business. But all three told the justice they were broke. So they were not fined.

All Poor, Says Justice

Justice Schweinhaut said:

"May has no financial substance. It does not make sense to impose a fine that perhaps his family as a matter of pride would pay for him. I have no indication that either of the Garssons is a man of substance."

The men might have been fined up to $30,000 apiece.

Prosecutors William A. Paisley and John T. M. Reddan have brought out that up to two years ago Dr. Garsson took nearly a million dollars, and his brother about $400,000, out of their munition business. But Chief Derense Counsel Charles J. Margiotti told the court the money was all gone.

Margiotti opened yesterday's hearing with a motion attacking the jurors who tried the case. Margiotti offered the court a statement by Daniel M. Gary, band and orchestra manager of 208 S st. nw. Gary swore several jurors told him that during the trial they read newspapers and listened to radio reports of the trial—which was against the orders of the judge. More than once during the trial, Margiotti tried to get it called off because he claimed newspaper reports of the evidence and the court's rulings were hurting his clients. On Gary's statement, he asked that the jurors be brought into court for questioning by the defense lawyers.

Retrial Motions Denied

Justice Schweinhaut refused, and turned down all motions for a new trial.

Attorneys Warren E. Magee, Perry W. Howard and Margiotti then made pleas for mercy for their clients. May, they said, is an old man with a long and honor-

Truman Flight Hinges on New Report on Mother

By The Associated Press

Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, White House physician, said yesterday he planned to fly to Grandview, Mo., late last night or today to check up again on the condition of President Truman's 94-year-old mother.

Graham said that when he was in Missouri last week the condition of Mrs. Martha E. Truman was "very critical" but he did not consider it such as to warrant the President's going there.

Graham made his comment to reporters after news dispatches from Missouri said Mrs. Truman had suffered a setback.

Whether the President flies to Missouri this weekend apparently depends on the report he will get today from Graham, who has made fequent flights to Missouri since the elderly patient fractured her hip in a fall last February.

Unification Bill Sent to President

Universal Training Approved by House Group; Measure On Calendar Jan. 1

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The House yesterday sent the armed services unification bill to the White House and moved another security measure one step nearer final action.

Its Armed Services Committee approved, 20 to 0, legislation for universal military training. Chairman Andrews (R., N. Y.) said House action would not be sought at this session, but the bill would be on the calendar when Congress returns January 1.

As approved by the committee, the bill follows closely the recommendations of the Compton universal training committee, which unanimously urged such a course as essential to national security. It would require all physically qualified young men to take six months of military training at 18 or upon leaving high school.

Prompt Signing Expected

The unification measure, result of two years of sometimes bitter controversy and ultimate compromise, was expected to be signed promptly by the President. He has pressed for passage of some such legislation since he took office.

Mr. Truman's first move under the new law will be to nominate a Secretary of Defense, who will be a member of his Cabinet and exercise supervision of all the armed forces. It has been a foregone conclusion that the post will go to Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal.

The bill sets up a National Military Establishment containing departments of Army, Navy and Air Forces, each headed by a civilian secretary without Cabinet rank. It has been expected that Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall, who took office Thursday, will become Secretary of the Army.

Air Force Advanced

For the first time in the Nation's history, an Air Force on equal footing with the traditional Army and Navy will be established, returning the Army largely to ground and service forces. Retention of naval aviation, both ship-and-shore-based, is guaranteed by the bill which also specifies that the Marine Corps not be divorced from the Navy or molested in training for amphibious operations.

In addition, the measure establishes:

A National Security Council, headed by the President, to coordinate foreign, military and domestic policy.

A Central Intelligence Agency to coordinate all intelligence functions of the Government.

A National Security Resources Board to direct industrial and civilian mobilizatoin in an emergency.

Action Nearly Blocked

The Secretary of Defense may be a civilian or a military man who has not held commissioned rank in a regular component of any service in the 10 years prior to his appointment. The director of the Intelligence Agency may be either a civilian or an officer.

Approval of the universal military training bill by the House committee was blocked for a time when Representative Short (R., Mo.), a stanch opponent of such legislation, walked out and left the committee without a quorum. The appearance of Representative Durham (D., N. C.) restored the quorum, however, and the vote was taken.

Representativs Thompson (D., Tex.), Vinson (D., Ga.), and Herbert (D., La.), who were absent, voted for the measure by proxy.

One a Convicted Murderer

3 Overpower Guard, Escape Ancient Alexandria City Jail

Three prisoners, one a convicted murderer at large from a North Carolina State penitentiary, broke out of the ancient Alexandria city jail at 6:10 a. m. yesterday.

They overpowered a guard, walked downstairs and opened the front door with a key which was in the lock.

The guard, Albert Thomas, 21, 420 N. Payne st., Alexandria, was bringing out for the night two trusties who had occupied the same second-floor cell block as the prisoners. After the second trusty had come through the cell block door, Thomas said, one of the prisoners seized him by the throat before he could lock the door, pulled him into the block and got him down on the floor with the aid of another prisoner.

Thomas declared he was able to strike one of the prisoners with his fist and kicked the other one, while the third fled with the keys. The other two followed, and used a key to take a .38-caliber revolver out of a desk drawer in the first floor office of the jail. They escaped through the main front door by turning a key which Thomas had left in the lock. Two minutes later, the guard said, he got to the phone and reported the break to Alexandria police. The guard has been employed by the jail two months.

The escaped convict was identified as James Brown, 24, of New York City, alias D. B. Johnson, who escaped in June, 1945, while serving a 20-year term for second degree murder. This was the second time he had escaped from North Carolina, Alexandria Detective Lieut. Russell E. Hawes said.

The other two have records but are not wanted as far as Alexandria police know, according to Lieut. Hawes. They are Henry Edward William, 24, New York City, and Ernest Jacobs, 20, whose address was given as 1133 10th st nw. Neighbors said Jacobs had moved away from there some time ago. All three are Negroes.

The break occurred as improvements on the jail, ordered by Judge William P. Woolls of the Corporation Court, were in partially finished condition. Judge Woolls had previously charged Mayor William F. Wilkins and eight city councilmen with failure to take action on recommendation of the jail commission.

City Sergt. Robert H. Cox, in charge of the jail, who was at his home, 302 King Street rd., Alex-

Arnold Lines Bus Fare Rise Urged on ICC

Increase 10-Cent Trips to 15 Cents, Advises Examiner

Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner Tobias Naftalin, although rejecting blanket fare increases proposed by the Washington, Virginia anad Maryland Coach Co. (Arnold Lines), recommended yesterday five-cent increases in its interstate passenger trips now costing ten cents.

He also recommended that token fares be sold at the rate of two for 25 cents.

At the same time Examiner Charles W. Bennett recommended that the Washington, Marlboro, and Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., should be permitted to boost its fares between Washington and Maryland points, except for travel between the District and Coral Hills and Hillside, Md.

20 Days to File

In each case the interested parties are given 20 days in which to file briefs outlining their exceptions. If such action is taken, the case is reviewed by the ICC. This report would be final, as distinguished from the recommended reports filed yesterday.

However, if no exceptions are made within the 20-day period, the recommended report automatically becomes final—with one exception. That is, the ICC can always reopen the case by entering an order staying the effectiveness of the recommendations.

At each hearing the burden of proof fell upon the carrier to show cause why its particular rates should be increased.

The examiners heard the W.M. & A. evidence March 13 and 17.

Senate Allots $1,530,361,000 In Foreign Aid

Connally Describes Communist Threat To Greece, Turkey

By The Associated Press

Senator Connally (D., Tex.) told the Senate yesterday that "irregular bands from Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria" are attempting to "overthrow the government of Greece and install therein a communistic state."

His statement came as the Senate passed a $1,530,361,000 bill to finance American foreign policy, including the 400 million dollars promised to Greece and Turkey for their drive against communism. The measure now goes back to the House for action on Senate additions.

Connally, former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said it is of the "utmost importance that the United States make good on President Truman's promise of economic and other aid to Greece and Turkey."

"Must Stand Firm"

Greece now is the "very sensitive spot" of the world, he continued, and the United States aid will enable it to resist "aggression on its borders."

Connally said that "war-like nations" now are trying every means to cause trouble on the Greek borders and the United States "must stand firm."

He said the same thing is happening to a "lesser degree in Turkey."

The House had trimmed the Administration's request for $1,548,364,000 by 12.6 per cent but the Senate voted to restore most of that cut.

The foreign aid fund is contained in a general deficiency ap-

Warning Unheard

Girl, 2½, Is Hurt Fatally By Auto at Silver Spring

Carolyn Sue Miller, 2½, of 9802 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., was injured fatally at 6:30 p. m. yesterday when struck by a car in front of her home.

Driver of the car, James E. Helsel, 23, of 1301 Seminary rd., Silver Spring, had talked with the child in the first floor barbershop and given her two nickels only a few minutes before.

A witness, Melvin Fullerton, service station and dry cleaning agency operator, said Helsel had backed his car out of the parking place and had started forward when the girl ran in front of the auto. Her head was crushed and she died en route to the hospital.

Fullerton said he shouted a warning, but neither the girl nor the driver heard it.

Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental death.

A 20-year-old sailor, who had served just one week of his second enlistment, died yesterday in Prince Georges County Hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when a Navy dump truck overturned on Central ave. near Largo, Md.

The dead man, according to officials at the Navy Receiving Station at Anacostia, is James W Sims of Kansas City, Mo., who was attached to the receiving station here pending assignment to another base.

Bradley Burns, driver of the truck, has been charged with manslaughter by Prince Georges County police.

At the same time, the Potomac River Naval command asked that occupants of two cars which had been following the truck communicate with Lieut. Comdr. M. J. McIntire at Franklin 5700, extension 354. Burns is scheduled for hear-

Army Funds Bill Is Sent to Truman; Sugar Quotas Fixed; Vote Probe Shelved

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congress last night drove within coasting distance of a final adjournment today after abandoning for dead Republican moves for investigation of the Kansas City vote frauds.

To winnow the last load of "must" legislation, the Senate plunged from one all-night session into another half as long.

Explosive outbursts from sleepy-eyed legislators slowed the swing down the last lap, but Congress got this much work done:

1. The House passed and sent to the White House the armed forces unification bill, one of the few truly non-partisan measures enacted this session.

Army Funds Bill Passed

2. House and Senate passed and sent to the President a $5,482,529,600 Army appropriation bill, cut some 234 million dollars under the budget.

3. Senate passed and sent to conference the $1,530,000,000 foreign aid bill, carrying 400 million dollars for Greece and Turkey, 332 million dollars for famine relief and 750 million dollars for occupied areas.

4. Senate returned to conference the 35-million-dollar Government corporation bill. It recommitted the bill at the request of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.). Vandenberg protested a provision bringing the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation under what he said was a "political agency," the Budget Bureau.

Sugar Quotas Fixed

5. Passed by a voice vote a bill setting sugar quotas for five years. An effort to strike out a provision empowering the Government to refuse import quota increases to countries failing to pay United States private debts was defeated, 42 to 40.

Conference reports on the controversial agriculture and war civil appropriations bills were still hanging fire. There was dynamite in both, but leaders said the only real barriers to adjournment were the session-worn tempers of members themselves. Hoping for the best, they readied a resolution adjourning Congress until January 6, subject to recall by the President or Republican leaders.

Virtually Dies on Vine

The Kem resolution to investigate the Attorney General's handling of the Kansas City fraud virtually died on the vine after Republicans failed in an 18-hour and 12-minute all-night session to shove it through a Democratic filibuster.

Technically, the resolution will be before the Senate again today, but Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) practically threw in the sponge last night. In a radio speech he said Senate rules "made it impossible to prevent a small clique from thwarting the people's will as shown by a majority in the Senate.

Said Kem: 'I challenge the Truman Administration to raise this

Guerillas Routed In Grevena Attack

Force Reportedly Bottled Up Makes Surprise March

Athens, July 25 (AP).—A War Ministry spokesman announced that a force of 1200 to 1500 guerillas made an unsuccessful attack on Grevena early today after a surprise march from Mount Grammos where they supposedly had been bottled up by the Greek army.

Military sources said the guerillas were part of the band of 2000 to 2500 which attacked Konitsa and attempted to march on Ioannina, capital of Epirus, nearly two weeks ago.

This band, which the Greeks said came from Albania, previously had been reported surrounded and then split up into small units, some of which were last reported trying to fight their way back to another guerilla force holding out under army attack on Mount Grammos.

Is City of 4000

Grevena, a city of 4000 in the eastern foothills of the Pindus Mountains, is 37 air miles south of Mount Grammos on the Albanian border and the same distance northeast of Konitsa.

The War Ministry spokesman said the attack on Grevena was "repelled and the guerillas decimated."

A War Ministry spokesman said, Greek Spitfires, some firing rockets, helped disorganize the attack.

Other activity on the guerilla front included the routing of a band of about 600 in a major engagement west of Lamia, 125 miles north of Athens.

Meanwhile, a high official in the Greek government, said "positive reports confirm" that elements of an international brigade were near the Greek border in Albania and Yugoslavia.

"Naturally we do not know where they will strike, nor do we know what are their plans, but all reports have been thoroughly checked and rechecked and we have not the slightest doubt they are correct."

Trade Talks Fail

Red Wheat Too 'Dear' For Britain

London, July 25 (U.P.).—Harold Wilson, chief of the British mission seeking for weeks to negotiate a trade agreement with Russia, left Moscow for London by plane today and it was feared that British attempts to get Russian wheat on acceptable terms had finally failed. He had conferred until 8:30 last night with Russian Foreign Trade Minister A. I. Mikoyan.

The dispatch noted that Under Secretary of Foreign Trade Nikolai Mussinsky — not Mikoyan — saw Wilson off at the airport, an indication that the parting was not especially friendly.

It was added that Sir Maurice Drummond Peterson, British Ambassador who had intended to accompany Wilson and take a vacation, decided to remain in Moscow for another week "to clear up some minor trade details for which Wilson's delegation laid the groundwork."

It was feared, however, that Peterson could merely salvage some minor agreements from the wreckage of the negotiations as a whole.

Britain had hoped strongly for an agreement which would bring her one million tons of Russian wheat and permit her to end bread rationing this fall.

But it was understood that Mikoyan insisted on a price for wheat in excess of the present Chicago price of about $2.40 a bushel for the entire lot, and there is a belief in government quarters here that the Chicago price will soon drop because of a bumper American crop.

Four in Mission Injured In London Crash Landing

London, July 25 (AP).—J. Harold Wilson, chief of the British trade mission to Russia, and three members of his party were injured tonight when the plane in which they were returning from Moscow crashed in landing at the London airport. No one among the 17 aboard was killed.

Wilson, who is the British overseas trade secretary, complained of pains in his chest as he was placed in an ambulance.

andria, at the time the break occurred, said Thomas "must have been a little careless," but added that "I think we're going to let it stand this way."

The 79-year-old city sergeant, who said he had been in charge of the jail since 1901, declared this was the first jailbreak there in about 40 years.

Cox conferred with Judge Woolls, City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast, and Commenwealth Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., and then reported that Judge Woolls had told him no action was necessary.

Posts $100 Reward

Cox announced he would pay a $100 reward from his personal funds for the return of the three prisoners. He said Thomas should not have gone to the cell block to open the door alone.

"My orders have been for all guards to have someone with them whenever they open the cell-block doors," Cox declared. He explained that Thomas was on duty all night and had charge of the jail in the absence of Cox and J. Cris Gill, jailer.

The day guard was a little late, Cox declared. He arrived at 6:20 a. m., about 10 minutes after the break, Cox said.

un-American iron curtain and let the people know the facts."

In the House, which earlier abandoned the fight, Representative Walter C. Ploesser (R., Mo.) charged the Administration must have something very definite to hide." He predicted the House will order an investigation early next session.

One highly placed Democrat said Administration Senators opposed the inquiry "because its just a thinly veiled effort to smear the President every day for five months."

As the Senate buckled down to work after a bad night it twice upset its leadership to pass bills managed by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) liberalizing veterans "on the farm" and "on the job" training program.

Senate Republican Steersman Robert A. Taft (Ohio) moved to send both bills back to committee, predicting a Presidential veto unless a comprehensive study of GI training programs preceded action. Taft was defeated 45 to 31 on one recommit motion and 57 to 20 on the other.

One Man Delaying Action

Late in the afternoon Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.) opened a one-man delaying action of his own, designed to force the leadership to call up and give separate consideration to the Mundt bill authorizing the "Voice of America" and information program.

Hatch offered to yield temporarily to Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) for a compromise resolution authorizing a joint congressional committee to make a study of international broadcasting programs and make recommendations next session.

Hatch proposed a series of unanimous consent agreements to that effect. The first was blocked by Taft, when Hatch reserved the right to hold the floor. Hatch clashed angrily with the Ohioan when Taft made a point of order designed to take Hatch off his feet.

Later the New Mexico Democrat tried again to get unanimous consent for the compromise. Kem blocked the next move, charging Hatch had participated in a filibuster against his own proposed Kansas City investigation. Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) stopped another, angrily protesting that Hatch was using filibuster tactics to force the Senate to accept a bill.

'Recent Events' In Alexandria Call in Council

The Alexandria city council will meet in special session today at 11:30 a. m. to discuss "certain recent developments in the city."

The meeting was called at a special meeting held last night to discuss a personnel survey just completed of all city employes. The council was ready to discuss other business until a point of order showed that only business specifically docketed for a special meeting could be discussed.

Although no councilman would say what would come up at today's meeting, it was widely supposed that the meeting would undertake to iron out difficulties caused by recent resignations of three city officials.

Youth's Body Is Recovered In Maryland

The body of Jack Dalrymple, jr., 15, who drowned Sunday while on a fishing trip near his home in Kenwood Beach, Calvert County, Md., was recovered Thursday.

Young Dalrymple was working on a fishing boat Sunday when he apparently fell overboard after casting an anchor over the side. The boat went about 100 feet before the boy was sighted, swimming without any trouble, according to witnesses. He was within a few feet of a life preserver when he went down.

A certificate of accidental death by drowning was issued by Hugh Ward, city coroner and health officer.

Dalrymple enlisted in the Army last November, and served six months with the Signal Corps at Fort Dix, N. J., and Fort M. t., Va., before an Eliot Junior High School truant officer in Washington caught up with him.

He leaves his parents, Jack D. Dalrymple, sr., and Hazel Dalrymple; a brother, Raymond D. Dalrymple, and six sisters, Joann, Mary Jane, Jerry Dell, Penny Lee Mrs. Darlene Reemshyder and Mrs. Louise Madeoy.

Funeral services will be held at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., at 1 p. m. Monday, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Conga Picket Line Question Waltzes Into Court Today

The fate of Washington's "conga" picket line will be determined at 10 a. m. Monday in District Court.

At that time Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws will decide whether —even with the shake, shake— picketing in front of the Arthur Murray Studios on Connecticut ave. constituted a violation of the Taft-Hartley Labor Law. It will be the first local test of the new legislation.

The jurist will either continue the restraining order which halted the "one, two, three . . . kick" demonstration Thursday night or throw it out of court.

Joseph Forer, attorney for New York Local 16 of the United Office and Professional Workers of America (CIO), which sponsored the terpsichorean protest, contended yesterday the restraining order is "completely unauthorized by law."

Interim Hearing May Be Held on Byrd's Election

The contested election of Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) may be considered by the Senate Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections before Congress reconvenes next January.

Possibility of the hearing was affirmed this week in a letter from subcommittee chairman Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) to Arlington County Treasurer John Locke Green.

Green filed the contest petition in behalf of Lester S. Parsons, Norfolk Republican, who opposed Byrd in the 1946 Virginia senatorial election.

Green has said the Virginia senatorial contest is void, because laws under which Byrd was elected "clearly violate the Constitution of the United States." Referring to Virginia's poll tax laws, he said Byrd received a total of 169,000 votes out of a potential 1,332,000 in 1946 due to the "purpose and administration" of Virginia's franchise laws.

Bus Boy Is Held In Fatal Stabbing

Joseph Washington, jr., 26-year-old busboy, was arrested and held for a coroner's jury yesterday in the fatal stabbing of James Bennett, 35, of 1116 9th st. nw.

Washington, who gave as his address 306 T st. nw., said he acted in self-defense during a fight with Bennett at 7th st. and Mount Vernon pl. nw., Thursday evening. Bennett, able to summon a taxi, was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he died shortly after of throat wounds.

Police made the arrest at 9th and K sts. nw. at 7 o'clock last night, approximately 24 hours after the stabbing.

Navy Opens Old Rates For Reenlistment

Rates to men with former naval service, who have been discharged from the service for a period of more than three months, have been reopened until October 31, the Bureau of Naval Personnel announced yesterday.

Previously, men discharged for more than three months could reenlist only in the fifth pay grade unless they were electronic technicians. Under the new rule it is possible for them to return to duty with petty officer ratings.

30th Anniversary Just Another Day To Edgar Hoover

Today will be "just another day" at the FBI, though the head of that agency, J. Edgar Hoover, will be celebrating his 30th anniversary with the Department of Jupstice. Hoover, no w52, went to work for the department in 1917 after receiving his law degree from George Washington University.

Eight years later the department bureau of investigation underwent a shake-up, and Hoover, then a special assistant to the attorney general, was made chief of the FBI.

Hoover proceeded to modernize the bureau completely, revise training methods and build the once graft-ridden agency into a top-flight crime detection organization.

Today the egency, with Hoover's personal motto "The job is never done" ever present, has won the Nation.

Gross Swindle, Declares Krug Of Hughes Party Expense List

Washington on Saturday, June 9. I was not in the vicinity of Louisville, Ky., at all."

The photo copies of expense accounts made out by Meyer purported to show that wartime Government officials and other bigwigs were entertained with $100-a-night party girls, night club dinners, and expensive gifts.

The Senate War Investigating Committee is to open Monday a glamour-studded public inquiry into the 40 million dollars worth of war contracts held by Hughes.

To Divert Attention

Chairman Brewster (R., Me.) charged that stories of show girls and parties were released by Hughes' publicity firm to divert public attention from the real course of the inquiry and "discredit" the the investigation in advance.

He said he was convinced that the Carl Byoir public relations firm, which he said represented Hughes, was the "source" of the stories.

However, the committee has said it wanted to find out if the cost of gay parties in New York and Washington were charged against the war contracts.

Byoir said in New York that Brewster could easily prove his charge by "asking any reporter" where the stories of the parties originated.

One of the photo copies which showed an expense for a dinner in New York's Robert Restaurant at which Krug and Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington were allegedly entertained also listed Miss Linda Shelton and Miss Jane Green as at the dinner.

A committee source reported that Meyer was forced to keep a detailed record of his expense accounts by other vice presidents of the Hughes interests, who claimed he was spending too much money.

When Meyer, now in the farthest part of the Argentine, gave sworn testimony before the War Investigating Committee in executive session, he turned over these accounts.

Classified as "Master"

Krug classified Meyer as "a master swindle sheet operator."

There is, however, a considerable body of independent evidence on Meyer's expense accounts. In each instance where Meyer referred, for example, to a hotel bill, committee investigators sought out the hotel registers for the date to confirm the charge.

One of the largest single items, for example, was a bill totaling more than $1000 for a hotel weekend for a high-ranking Army procurement officer and his wife.

Questioned in executive session, the officer admitted being at the hotel, but said his wife paid the Hughes company officials back in cash for the weekend with a roll of bills she carried.

propriation totaling $1,680,737,897 as passed by the Senate.

This is $77,538,802 more than the House allowed.

Besides the 400 million dollars to help Greece and Turkey to combat communism—the same amount voted by the House—the bill provides 332 million dollars for relief in Italy, Austria, Trieste, China and Greece.

It also:

Carries 725 million dollars to pay the occupation and relief costs in Japan, Korea and Germany for 15 months, as compared with 550 million dollars for 12 months approved by the House.

$2,336,500 for Resettlement

Provides $73,361,400 to cover this country's share of the cost of the International Refugee Organization's care of an estimated 850,000 refugees in Europe. The Senate restored $2,336,500 for mass resettlement, an item eliminated by the House.

The bill also provides deficiency funds for several domestic agencies, including the Veterans Administration, Labor Relations Board, the Commerce, Agriculture and War Departments, and the Federal Security Agency.

Just before passage, the Senate restored $1,661,000 for the United States Employment Service for the farm labor placement program which the Appropriation Committee had eliminated.

Senator Ball (R., Minn.) lost an attempt to have this administered by the Department of Agriculture.

House Passes Bill Freeing Italian Assets

By The Associated Press

The House completed congressional action yesterday on a measure to unfreeze more than 50 million dollars in wartime-seized Italian assets and to furnish Italy with 28 ships taken over early in the war.

The action sending the bill to the White House came on voice vote, despite a protest from Representative Rich (R., Pa.), that the move will leave the claims of Americans for war losses in Italy unprotected. A clause in the bill, however, sets apart five million dollars of the frozen funds for that purpose.

The ships include 13 Italian vessels, among them five which were seized by Brazil and Venezuela, which later were purchased by this country to help relieve the wartime shipping strain. In addition, the measure will provide Italy with 15 vessels from the big reservoir of surplus Liberty ships.

Civil Air Patrol Cadets to Receive 2 Weeks Training

More than 100 teen-aged Civil Air Patrol cadets from the Baltimore area will arrive at Andrews Field tomorrow by Army bus to begin a two-week intensive ground course in aeronautics.

The cadets, part of the Fourth Provisional Group, Maryland wing of the CAP, will live in Army tents on the field and will be taken on flights in B-29 bombers and C-47 cargo planes, in addition to attending classes.

The training will cover engine and aircraft mechanics, navigation, communications, radar, organization and drill. Army textbooks and manuals will be used by Army Air Force instructors in the classes. First Lieut. Herman L. Kramer of Baltimore, communications officer of the wing, will be in charge.

On Friday, Air Force Day, Brig. Gen. Frederick H. Smith will inspect the cadets' encampment and review the group.

State Tax Body Gives Pattern For Assessments

Salisbury, Md., July 25 (AP).—A pattern to be followed in Camden district assessments was laid down by the State Tax Commission today with the belief that tax assessors and the county commissioners could agree on all appealed assessments and their action would be affirmed.

The commission's opinion as given by Chairman Joseph H. A. Rogan was that front foot values on Cahden avenue would be at the reduced figure set by the assessors during the appeals hearings. The assessments in some instances were $5 a front foot higher than those set by Wicomico County commissioners. The commission also instructed the assessors to make a vacancy allowance, up to 20 per cent of assessed value, for vacant lots.

Indonesian informants predicted that the Dutch would allow separate parts of the former Republican territory to become new Federal partners in the United States of Indonesia if the populations desire. Linquistic and cultural differences between the peoples of Java and Sumatra, these sources said, make the following divisions possible:

West Java where 12 million Sundanese speak their own language.

Central Java, where the present Indonesian Republic might continue as a regional state.

East Java and the adjacent island of Madoera. Much of this area is populated by the Madoerese, who have a distinct culture.

Achin District of northern Sumatra, which has a clannish Moslem population.

Batak country and the northeast coast of Sumatra. A large part of the Bataks are Christians.

Minangkabau Land—the area around Palang, on Sumatra's west coast, and Fort de Kock. The inhabitants there preserve a matriarchal system.

U. S. Reporter, Wife 'Deported' by British

Copenhagen, July 25 (AP).—William L. Lawrence, New York Times correspondent, said today he and his wife had become involved in British army red tape en route to Copenhagen Thursday and had been "deported" from the British zone in Germany to Holland.

Lawrence said he left London Wednesday night. The Dutch issued 24-hour visas, but the British border control at Germany told them they could not pass. After some arguing, Lawrence said, a British soldier led them to a small shed. They were locked up for several hours, then deported.

G. W. U. Officials And Union Set Monday Meeting

George Washington University officials will meet at 2:30 p. m. Monday with representatives of Building Service Employes Local 82 (AFL) to discuss terms of a new contract.

Samuel Levine, union attorney, said yesterday he had received a letter from Fred E. Nessell, business manager of the university, agreeing to the conference. Although the old contracts expired at the end of May, the university has made no new wage offers, he said.

An estimated 70 employes, maintenance and cleaning personnel, are involved. Union officials said the current wage scale is about 60 cents an hour.

U. S. Warns Nations On Ignoring U. N.

Three Satellites Urged to Respect Actions of Council

Lake Success, July 25 (AP).—The United States warned Russia's three Balkan satellites today that any attempt to ignore the decisions of the Security Council might result in the strongest kind of enforcement measures.

The warning came after Russia bluntly told the Council that it had no power to force Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania to cooperate with the American-proposed border commission.

The clash developed between Russia and the United States over whether the Council has the power to set up a commission to investigate border disputes in the Balkans.

It marked the finish of four weeks' debate on the Balkan problem with the Council still far from a decision and brought an Australian charge that Russia and her satellites were staging a "filibuster" to delay United Nations action.

Declaring that the 11-nation body's decisions were binding, U. S. Deputy Delegate Herschel V. Johnson said "it is the duty of the members of the United Nations to abide by the decisions."

This brought a retort from Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko that if a nation found that the work of a commission "is incompatible with its sovereignty then it can refuse to cooperate."

Gromyko's statement added support to earlier indications that Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria would refuse to cooperate with the proposed "watchdog" commission.

Dr. Oscar Lange of Poland, Council president, said he had thought "the moral and political authority of this Council is so great that no nation would ever wish to refuse to carry out its recommendations."

The Council recessed until Monday without a vote. It appeared that it would be the middle of next week before a vote is reached.

Bulgaria Will Admit H. N. Team

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 24 (Delayed) (U.P.).—Bulgaria will permit the United Nations Balkans investigation team to enter Bulgaria to investigate alleged frontier incidents near Angistron-Lipa during April, authoritative sources said today.

The same sources said Bulgaria would not allow Greek witnesses to be questioned on Bulgarian territory. The team has headquarters at Salonika, Greece.

AMG Policy In Germany Is Reversed

By Wes Gallagher

Berlin, July 25 (AP).—The United States State Department, taking a direct hand in German political and economic policy over the head of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, apparently has reversed the policy of the American Military Government in order to gain French support.

This seeming reversal, as indicated by Secretary of State Marshall's offer to give France a voice in setting a level of industry for the American and British zones, evoked some comment here today and may result in wide changes in the American administration of Germany.

Officials here were surprised by the State Department's action. They had not been informed of the Marshall letter to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault replying to French protests against a British-American agreement in Berlin to raise the level of German industry to between 10 million and 12 million tons of steel annually. The French said revival of German industry on such a scale as a potential threat to French security, and was a question which should be settled by the four-power Foreign Ministers Council.

The Marshall letter was interpreted by the French as an invitation to a French-British-American conference which the French said yesterday they would accept.

Background of the change in American policy is to be found in two schools of thought on European affairs in the State and War Departments in Washington and the military government in Germany. These differences can be summed up in the question whether ti is betetr for the United States to combat communism in France, to the neglect of Germany, or whether it is better to combat communism and economic chaos in Germany at the expense of French support.

Ask Industry Level Hike

Berlin, July 25 (U.P.).—German leaders of states in the Russian occupation zone have asked formally that the four-power Allied council here raise the level of industry throughout Germany, it was made known today.

and arguments of the Arnold Lines June 23, 24, 26 and 27.

Nattalin's full recommendations for the Arnold Lines:

1. In the first zone involving distances 6.7 to 9.8 miles from Washington, a cash fare increase of five cents—or from 10 to 15 cents—and a token fare of two trips for 25 cents.

2. The second and third zones to remain the same, 15 and 20 cents a trip, respectively.

3. The fourth zone charge to go up from 20 to 25 cents.

4. The fifth and sixth zone rates, 30 and 35 cents, respectively, should be retained.

During the hearing on the across-the-board fare increase, salaries paid some of the Arnold Lines' officials had been under fire.

The ICC yesterday also authorized the Arnold Lines to issue $300,000 of 4 per cent promissory notes, to finance the purchase of buses.

Poles Protest Relief Denial

Warsaw, July 25 (U.P.).—Poland's left wing government protested bitterly today against the American decision to exclude Poland from the United States post-UNRRA relief program.

A government communique denounced the decision, announced in Washington Wednesday, as unjust, and a spokesman said:

"It means that for another year the Polish worker will be undernourished."

The spokesman, at a press conference, said also that the American decision "probably will influence the nature of conversations now going on in Moscow for a new Polish-Russian trade agreement."

(Presumably this meant that Poland, Russia's satellite, would put up to Moscow the price Poland is paying for her adherence to the Moscow line.)

Have Until August 3 to Report

Paris, July 25 (AP).—The 16 nations in the European economic conference have until August 3 to turn in information on their resources and needs for use in framing requests for United States aid under the Marshall Plan.

Md. County Agents See Insect Control In Montgomery

Insect control methods practised by the Montgomery County Farm Bureau were observed yesterday in a tour of the county participated in by almost 50 Maryland county agents.

Sponsored by the University of Maryland Entomology Department and the Farm Bureau, the tour concerned itself primarily with Japanese beetle control methods.

Different kinds of spraying equipment were studied and County Agent O. W. Anderson also staged a display of all services performed by the Farm Bureau.

leaders, and then confer with Governor Warren. The latter is not in California now, having joined with other Governors in a cruise to Hawaii.

Stassen said it was just a "coincidence" that he crossed Governor Dewey's trail in this rootin', tootin' Cow Town, now whooping it up in a frontier days celebration.

"I want to extend best wishes to Governor Dewey for a pleasant vacation in the West," Stassen said.

A little later he made a friendly poke at Dewey, saying he himself was on "a political trip."

Now "Chief Brave Heart"

Governor Dewey, whose new Indian name is Chief Brave Heart, is the hardest-working tourist that of his "nonpolitical" sojourn here, ever hit these parts. In the course the New Yorker must have shaken hands with well over a thousand well-wishers, 700 of them last night during a reception at the Phelps Polo Ranch, 3 miles outside Cheyenne.

It was there that he was adopted by the Ogallala Sioux Indians and given the name of Chief Brave Heart. He was given a magnificent war bonnet, but he declined to put it on for the benefit of photographers.

All politicians seem to be leery of wearing Indian head dress since the time Calvin Coolidge was photographed wearing one and giving his little-boy grin.

Princess Blue Cloud, the Sioux maiden who initiated Dewey, didn't seem to take his "vacation" talk seriously.

3000 Sioux Will Help

"We believe you're going to win this time an dwe're going to help you."

There are about 3000 of the Ogallala Sioux, but nobody out here seems to know whether they can vote or not.

Governor Dewey, together with Mrs. Dewey and their two sons, watched an old frontier parade today. They saw stage coaches, prairie wagons and Indians in war bonnets and war paint. They later went out to Frontier Park and saw another round of the world's greatest rodeo.

Cheyenne meantime was putting on an exhibition of two-fisted drinking that brought expressions of amazement and admiration from the dudes in Governor's party. All through the day and night, the celebrants are at the bars, six deep or more.

Today a cowboy rode his horse through the door and right into the Tivoli saloon. He reached back to where, in an earlier day, his six-shooter would have been hanging. All that came out, however, was a raffle book. The cowpuncher was selling chances on his cream-colored horse.

Governor Dewey and his party left here at 6:30 o'clock for Owosso, Mich., where he will visit his mother. He has asked that there not be any home-coming celebration. Obviously, he doesn't want to antagonize those Michigan Republicans who think that Senator Vandenberg is presidential timber.

As he left Wyoming, Governor Dewey could not be sure of more than part of that State's delegates at the Philadelphia convention.

Today a reporter asked Senator Edward V. Robertson if he was still for Governor Dewey.

"I've never been for Governor Dewey," the Senator snapped.

able public career. They argued that both May and Murray Garsson are in bad health and liable to heart attacks. And they dwelt at length on Dr. Garsson's claims that he ran his errands for the Garssons, fronted for them with the Army and tried to get them materials, manpower and money with the sole aim of helping the war effort. Dr. Henry Garsson claoimed he went to May, who was House military chairman, only when some Army officers were unfair to him and his brother because they were Jews.

Both men covered this ground again yesterday, when they got up to plead for themselves.

The tall, portly former Congressman looked as though he was going to break into tears any moment. He told the justice:

"I have no sear of conscience, and I'm not guilty."

He said also that he never got a single dime from the Garssons or anybody else, that he never used wine, whisky, beer or tobacco because he wished to be hale in his old age, that he never violated the law in his life that he knew of, that he had been a Sunday School teacher and a Bible class teacher and that if he went to prison his grandchildren would drop out of college.

Light Planes Christened For World Hop

With 22,436 miles, a trip to Lockhaven, Pa., and about a week to go on their world-girdling flight, two light planes shuttled into National Airport for christening yesterday.

The occasion drew diplomatic and Government figures, a band, newsreels and radio and made the Baker Twins of Chevy Chase 45 minutes late for a fashion show.

One of the pilots is 26-year-old Clifford V. Evans, jr., a fourth-generation Washingtonian and Air Forces veteran of 1416 N. Abingdon st., Arlington, Va.

The other is George Truman, 39, of Berwyn, Md.

Their planes are of the type to be found on most any airport, but have special equipment and carry extra gas tanks where passengers normally ride. Their argosy will be the first ever attempted in such light-weight, low-powered (100-horsepower) aircraft. The nearest parallel in globe-girdling is the flight made by Wiley Post in a 575-horepower plane in 1933.

Their first stop after going back to Lockhaven for some last-minute accessories, will be LaGuardia Field; then Labradôr, Greenland, Iceland, Scotland and London.

The longest over-water hop will be Hokkaido to Attu and there'll be no stops in Russia.

4 Nazi Chiefs Hanged

Vienna, July 25 (U.P.).—Four former Nazi leaders were hanged today for the mass murders of Hungarian Jews in Austria during the war. They had been convicted last autumn by the Austrian People's Court.

Olin The Odd

The campaign to investigate our Police Department has been quashed by one negative in a 96-member Senate. The negative, voiced when the resolution to investigate appeared on the unanimous consent calendar, came from Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina. It looks as if, for the nonce, we shall have to concede defeat. It is one of a succession of defeats that good government has sustained in the District as a result of the intervention of an outsider. That is the tragedy of our local government. A South Carolinian, a personal friend of Superintendent Barrett, simply had to raise his hand to block an aye for an investigation recommended by the Senate District Committee, our city fathers. The irony of it! A community of a million Americans, frustrated for years in acquiring home rule, can be brushed off by one man, a man representing not Washington, but the State of South Carolina.

It was a gesture of contempt for the rights of a community that is without parallel in the history of government. This is not what we alone think. It is what a number of Senators, disgusted with the exhibition, felt, and Senator Ball gave expression of his own reaction. "The way the District Commissioner [meaning Mr. Young] has brushed it off," he says, meaning the inquiry, "and the way that the Chief of Police was able to get one out of 96 Senators to block the people of the District from getting the facts is as strong as any argument I have ever seen for giving the people of the District some form of home rule." The squeeze play referred to by Senator Ball was Superintendent Barrett's public priming of Senator Johnston after Barrett had publicly declared he welcomed an inquiry.

Those who feel there is better hope of redress for this forlorn and voteless and hamstrung community in the United Nations will point with justification to the lone veto cast by a South Carolinian whose sole interest in the District is an anxiety to do a good turn for a pal. Even Guam is more fortunate than the District of Columbia in effectuating a voice in its own affairs. Now the Commissioners can sit back, in cahoots with the police superintendent, in full possession of the police state in the District, the Capital of a country which is seeking to bring responsible and representative government to all backward countries.

Under our present system, there will always be some Senator, no matter how far away he lives, who can be seduced by our local satraps. Under our present system, there will always be available some device in our authoritarian state (or some perquisite available to it) to smother reform. Some day the people of Washington will wake up and demand that their affairs shall be taken out of the hands of the puissant State of South Carolina and put into their own. But if it had not been a South Carolinian, it would have been a Mississippian, or some other outlander. That Senator Johnston this time should exercise the veto is the rankest cut of all, for he is ill and disrespectfully known as the enemy of home rule, as a believer in treating Washington as the pocket borough of his local cronies.

In the meantime: March on, democracy! We pledge our readers that we will keep up the struggle to pry open the nepotistically ridden dictatorship that is the City of Washington, better called Barrett and Co.

Monopoly

Congress is about to adjourn without taking action on a bill to amend the Clayton Act so as to permit the Federal Trade Commission to proceed against corporate mergers that unduly restrain trade or tend to create a monopoly. A few days ago Representative Kefauver castigated Congress for its failure to plug loopholes in the existing law that enable corporations to acquire the assets of other companies and build up huge vertical and horizontal combines constituting a serious threat to smaller competitors.

Mr. Kefauver points out that the FTC has year in and year out vainly petitioned Congress for amendments to the law that would make it more effective. A recently completed FTC survey of merger developments during the past few years reveals a degree of concentration that is truly astounding and in certain aspects alarming, owing to the fact that most of the mergers have been effected through purchase of small concerns by large corporations. Some mergers, of course, are desirable, resulting in gains in efficiency and consequent benefits to the public. But there are types of mergers that because of their sheer size and other strategic advantages in effect strangle competition and lead to the disappearance of small business not merely by absorption but by elimination of competitors and destruction of the incentive to engage in new undertakings. In short, mergers are sometimes as instrumental in destroying free enterprise as outright monopolies.

That being the case, there is undoubtedly need for revision of the law to enable the FTC to arrest the progress of mergers that constitute a threat to our competitive economic system. The FTC already has the power to prevent a company from acquiring the stock of another company if the purchase would lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly. But the purpose of the law is easily circumvented by the purchase of assets. Passage of amendatory legislation would, therefore, not introduce any new principle of control; it would merely make it possible to carry out the intentions of our lawmakers which have been thwarted by interpretative court decisions.

Mr. Dewey's Gift

In an exchange of small talk at a luncheon at Bozeman the other day, Mr. Ernest Eaton, the Lieutenant Governor of Montana, is said to have remarked that the State is still somewhat underpopulated and would welcome more settlers from the crowded urban East. "Well, sir," Governor Dewey is reported to have replied, "you can have our 50,000 Commies if you want 'em."

The retort, it is said, raised a general laugh. Hitherto, Mr. Dewey has been represented to the electorate as an upright and fearless, but on the whole solemn and rather humorless, fellow. This bit of persiflage, however, seemed to indicate that his publicity staff and the press have done him less than justice; that he is as fond of a joke as the next man, even when it is a joke on his own State. But when the Montanans began to reflect on the matter some of them began to wonder whether it was a joke, after all; whether Mr. Dewey mightn't have meant it seriously. And at least one of them persuaded himself that Mr. Dewey did mean just what he said.

This was Representative Mike Mansfield, who last Monday broke into a rather spiritless debate on the amendments of the Civil Service Retirement Act to announce to his colleagues that the sovereign State of Montana isn't going to make itself any "haven for the kind of people that Governor Dewey and his backers in Wall Street" want to get rid of. There is room, said Mr. Mansfield, "for men and women who believe in America and who will help to develop our State, but there is no room for anyone whose first and complete loyalty is not to the United States of America."

Of course Mr. Mansfield is a Democrat, and his view of what Mr. Dewey really intended may be somewhat clouded by that fact. But when you come to think of it, his alarm is not wholly unfounded. For even if Mr. Dewey didn't really mean to, he may have put an idea into the heads of his Communist fellow citizens. A mass emigration of 50,000 comrades from New York to Montana would be a very serious matter. It would mean that approximately 1 out of every 10 inhabitants of the State would be Communist. By operating, as they always do, as a bloc they would soon obtain a political balance of power that would enable them to fill both seats in the Senate and both in the House of Representatives with fellow travelers. Indeed, from the Communist standpoint, Governor Dewey's suggestion has much to commend it. And by this time, for all Mr. Mansfield knows or for all we know, the necessary orders may have been given at Moscow.

All in all, we think it might have been better if Governor Dewey had held his tongue. Of course Montana has only four electoral votes, but on a close ballot at Philadelphia next year they might make a big difference. The Governors of North and South Carolina are able to find a more agreeable and discreet topic of conversation—"It's a long time between drinks"—when they meet than the Governors of Montana and New York.

Reflections On The Adjournment

The mellowness that inspired the President for a moment or two on Wednesday to take his old seat in the Senate comes over us as we approach the task of looking back at the first session of the Eightieth Congress. In this time we have had a divided Government. Last November a Republican Congress and a Democratic President seemed a misfit which, by precedent and according to all the omens, made for deadlock. There has been no such deadlock. Both branches of our Government have borne in mind that last November the people of the United States issued a mandate of government, not of deadlock. We have had government, and without the slightest abatement of power by either branch. Indeed, Mr. Truman not only has refused to be a rubber stamp; he has asserted his veto power with a vigor and sweep almost unique in our annals, notably in the veto on tax reduction.

Credit for the avoidance of deadlock belongs to the Republican leaders of Congress. We shall pick out for especial praise the two chairmen of the Foreign Relations Committees. Senator Vandenberg and Representative Eaton have striven, with a sense of patriotism altogether admirable, to work with the Executive in matters connected with our foreign affairs. In their conduct, there has not been a shred of partisanship. Both of them swallowed whatever pique they may have felt over their lack of executive preparation for the dramatic Greek crisis and the Truman Doctrine. As the session ends, both are hospitable to consideration of the Marshall Plan. Senate leaders will remain through the summer in close consultation with the State Department. A significant last decision of the House is the setting up of the Select Committee on Foreign Aid. The legislators intend to be informed, and in their behalf the committee will spend the next few weeks in Europe, studying the situation as House proxy. The committee is evidence of a zeal on the part of the House to figure out the score for themselves.

Time is thus being taken by the forelock. This is statesmanship. Statesmanship comes from the verb "to steer," and our mariners require the instruments necessary to guide our ship of state wisely and safely through the stormy seas of world affairs. Hitherto the legislative treatment of foreign policy has been more or less hit or miss. Clouds have been allowed to accumulate on the horizon in the hope that they will disperse. Time enough to take heed when they have broken and we have to deal with the rain! The present session winds up with signs that the legislators do not intend any longer to participate in crisis action. The result will be all to the good. Crisis action, generally, is bad and unthinking and panicky action. What is needed from our Nation as world leader is performance according to studied policy based upon intelligent anticipation. That is how a good business is conducted.

Prudence was further exemplified by the extension of export controls and of such war powers as would give the President the right to allocate goods for export. Here was a revelation of resiliency and awareness for which Congress deserves full marks. Congress came in with the intention of winding up the war and all its statutes; and yet, when the facts were borne in upon it, the members behaved with that wisdom which consists of attention to realities.

La Rochefoucauld, in one of his essays, says that men "perform according to their fears." That is to say, we put ourselves in the hands of bogies. Alas, plenty of hysteria has been invoked in Congress by the deterioration in our relations with Russia. "Commiphobia" we have called it. Surely the way to cope with Russia, which is simply banking upon the failure of our economy and our diplomacy, is to watch over both and strengthen them, not to go off on divisive witch-hunts. The hysteria may lessen as the new desire to be informed seizes Congress, as the new policy of molding events, instead of being molded by them, becomes the congressional pattern. At least we hope so.

Actually a quiet revolution has been under way in the working of Congress which the Administration has not yet noted. That is that the House has become a real factor in our foreign policy. Hitherto the Senate, which advises and consents on treaties, has been regarded as the sole foreign policy partner of the President. But in these days, when dollars are counting more than treaties, the House must be reckoned with. It is this chamber to which belongs the authoritative power of the purse. This was painfully apparent when John Taber indulged in his protracted haggle over the funds for the aid-for-Greece program. The delay may turn out to be tragic. Perhaps the knowledgeability which the House will gain this summer, coupled with a recognition in the State Department of House prerogatives, will make such an exhibition impossible to repeat.

John Taber, as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, has been the session's salient personality. Vital and incredibly industrious, Mr. Taber has taken it upon himself to cut out wartime excrescences in our bureaucracy and comb the budget of extravagance. Without a doubt the electorate in sweeping the Republicans into power gave a mandate for economy. But the people did not intend to arm Mr. Taber with a meat ax. This he has wielded right and left, and in the process, in our opinion, has lopped off some very useful expenditures. His overriding phobia, so far as we can make out, is against the research and information services of the Government. He appears to have nursed a grudge against the Office of War Information for boosting the stock and role of President Roosevelt.

The extreme to which Mr. Taber has gone is indicated by the paring to which the Legislative Reference Service, set up and added to by Congress in an effort to rely upon its own information resources, has been subjected. He knows, as Representative Kefauver has noted, that Congress cannot legislate without lobbies. Yet the way to liberation is the strengthening of the Legislative Reference Service, not the weakening of it.

At the same time, the Eightieth Congress has shown almost quixotic courage in carrying out the mandate for economy. Everybody believes in saving money except when the bill of particulars is presented. How many of the legislators must have squirmed when they voted against the pork barrels in Agriculture and Interior! They know they may have to pay for their public service when the voters get another chance at the ballot box. To add to their troubles, organized labor is gunning for over two thirds of them. It required courage on their part to resist the intimidation brought to bear by organized labor in its extraordinary campaign against any labor legislation. Certainly the Taft-Hartley Act is far from perfect. But the legislators knew it, and in that recognition left a watchdog committee in being to make sure of amendment in the light of experience. Studies with a view to action next session have likewise been authorized on housing, prices, and social security.

We hope the legislators will come back to work refreshed for the most honored undertaking in the Nation's disposition—that of government. They have proved that what Bagehot calls the "efficient secret" of government is men working together rather than perfect institutions or constitutions. May the deserving find their fences in order and may the undeserving find theirs in splinters!

Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

"NLRB Nominees"

From your editorial of July 23, "NLRB Nominees," in which you praise the President's recent appointments to the NLRB, it appears that your editorial writer still is not acquainted with the provisions of The Taft-Hartley Act which you so confidently espoused in your editorial columns prior to its enactment.

May I inform you of the provision in the new law which requires the separation of the judicial from the prosecuting functions of the board? Mr. Denham, whose appointment as general counsel you commend, will, when confirmed, be in charge of the investigatory and prosecuting functions of the board and in this office will have no authority over the trial examining staff, the equivalent of the judiciary in the board's present composition.

The suggestion, implicit in your editorial, that it would be a salutary thing were the board's judicial officers subordinate and answerable to its chief prosecutor, runs counter not only to the Taft-Hartley Act but to the Administrative Procedure Act which was designed primarily to prohibit just such interference with the judiciary. Luckily for the administration of justice, the law which you have so proudly championed is not as bad as you would make it!

EDGAR FAUST.
Arlington.

Editor's note: Our reference to the trial examiners as under the general counsel was inadvertent and erroneous. The editorial contained no suggestion, however, that the board's judicial officers should be subordinate to its prosecutor.

Loyalty Concepts

Our Government is today struggling with concepts of loyalty, just as the Army has for many generations.

In the Army loyalty is a fetish, so much so that for many years officers were rated on their efficiency reports according to the degree of "loyalty" they demonstrated toward their superiors. This item on the efficiency report served as a club in the hands of a superior, which he could use to dominate his subordinates.

Army officers of the old school have never been able to grasp the fact that loyalty must function downward from superior to subordinate, as well as upward. It is not a personal relationship between individuals, but implies devotion to the great cause which all are serving, regardless of position. Disloyalty to the cause is far more to be condemned than disloyalty to any individual.

Now we are applying loyalty tests to Government workers. One thousand persons of "questionable" loyalty have already been discharged, without opportunity to defend themselves. Again we drift into a personal relationship, and think in terms of loyalty to an anonymous "they"—meaning those who now give orders in our Government. We owe loyalty only to our Constitution, which represents the great cause of liberty which we all serve. We owe loyalty to any individual only to the extent that he serves the Constitution. The tests of loyalty imposed violate the fundamental freedoms established under the Constitution, and are imposed by the very officials who are sworn to defend the Constitution.

In the Army whenever a superior was forever complaining of the loyalty of his subordinates we could usually find the reasons for disloyalty in the arbitrary acts of the superior himself. If we are now faced with an outbreak of what appears to be disloyalty on a large scale, we had better search beneath the surface to discover the underlying causes. We must ask ourselves whether the disloyalty manifested is toward our charter of freedom, or whether it is toward individuals or philosophies which would destroy our freedoms.

H. C. HOLDRIDGE,
Brig. Gen., U. S. A. (Ret.)

Sudeten Germans

This country and incidentally your fine newspaper, received an unintended compliment from your correspondent in Germany, Herr Klinger, whose letter on the plight of the Sudeten Germans you published July 23.

Without in any way minimizing the hardship created by the mass moving of people out of homes and from family property they cherish, one wonders to whom Herr Klinger wrote his protest when so many others became displaced persons during the nightmarish period from 1939 to at least 1945. One wonders too why this legalistic gentleman who places so much emphasis on Chamberlain's appeasement policies should believe himself competent to say, "The cruelty of this (meaning his?) expulsion has never been surpassed." If he has observed the expulsion practiced by the Germans, if he has any basis of comparison, he may not be as innocent as he would like us to believe.

We should be pleased that he recognizes that in this country there is still a forum for unpopular causes. Perhaps he will seek to emulate our spirit of free speech and free press rather than regard our freedom as evidence of weakness in a democracy.

World Security

The Russian refusal to cooperate with the Marshall Plan shows that the Soviet Union has reached the height of its influence and will henceforth decline unless the free nations botch their present opportunities. When Russia feels compelled to inform Europe that she prefers Communist reform to economic recovery she must indeed be in a bad way. Hereafter we can expect only the most blatant opportunism and expediency in Russian policy.

Now is the time to suggest the bases for an ideological rapprochement with Russia in which the essentials of a free economy and political democracy will be preserved. Now is the time to put forward plans for world and regional federation as a foundation of permanent peace. Now is the time to offer technical, health, educational and financial aids to other powers who will cooperate in a real world security system, but do not want their independence suppressed or imperialism forced on them.

In such a political context, we should inform Russia now that we are through with her obstructionism in the United Nations; that we will not stand for any attempts by her government to infiltrate weak powers or force them into communism; and that Russian armed forces must be withdrawn from Austria, and from Germany at least beyond the Oder River. If a positive and adequate alternative to Russian communism is offered, and if Russia is contained by force if necessary within her legitimate boundaries, her political influence abroad will wane and her dictatorial system will break up from within.

A policy which is merely anti-Communist rather than pro a definite concept of political and economic freedom may only serve to strengthen a doddering but fanatical Communist clique everywhere.

Postponed Minimum Wage Boost

The leadership of the House of Representatives withdrew last week from its earlier announced decision to increase the 40-cent minimum wage in the Fair Labor Standards Act this summer. This is another example of the cynical indifference to the public welfare exhibited by the Eighticth Congress.

The controversy over restrictions on union labor has diverted attention from congressional policy affecting unorganized workers. The Fair Labor Standards Act, enacted in 1938, has provided basic protection for these unorganized workers, but the flat minimum of 40 cents per hour is now inadequate to meet even subsistence needs. In the closing days of the Seventy-ninth Congress, the 65-cent minimum wage bill, which had been passed by the Senate, was defeated in the House. This would have seemed to be one of the first items of unfinished business for the new Congress when it met in January. Senator Taft, chairman of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee, however, has repeatedly given the same answer to queries as to action on minimum wage, "We do not know whether we will have time to get to minimum wage this session."

But the Congress had time to enact the extremely dangerous Gwynne-Donnell bill, which reduces to two years the period in which claims for wages due under the Fair Labor Standards Act (as well as other Federal wage laws) can be collected and, by various devices, undercuts the effective enforcement of the law. The Congress also had time to cut the budget for enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act—both its wage and child labor provisions, the former by 25 per cent and the latter by 60 per cent.

The movement for minimum wage in this country began in the States in the early part of the century. It gained momentum during the depression years when wages fell to unbelievably low levels, when decent employers were caught in the competition with substandard employers and when public relief funds were used to supplement low wages. Twenty-six States and four Territories have adopted minimum wage laws. The enactment of the Fair Labor Standards Act brought thousands of men and women under the protection of a Nation-wide, statutory minimum, and it established the principle of Government responsibility for minimum wages, which has been upheld by the courts and supported by public opinion.

The greatest number of the underpaid are among the unorganized workers. They are the people we forget when we hear about the wage increases secured by unions. They are the people who are hardest hit by rising prices because the major portion of their income must be spent for food and clothing. If they are to keep their heads above water, if they are to remain self-supporting consumers instead of recipients of relief, there must be an increase in their hourly wage rate.

Increased productivity makes increased wages possible. But it does not insure them. The history of American industry shows that, in the absence of controls, either of effective collective bargaining or legislation, increased productivity was not adequately reflected in the pay envelope. During the six years preceding the crash of 1929, productivity per man hour increased 24 per cent and wage rates only 3½ per cent in manufacturing—a disparity which undoubtedly contributed to the collapse.

Congressman Hartley, chairman of the House Labor Committee, says, "It's all off until next January," but he makes no promise of action then. Must we wait for a new "mandate" of the people?

ELIZABETH S. MAGEE,
General Secretary National Consumers League.

Legislative Shock Troops

By Malvina Lindsay

Women Lobbyists

BRUNT OF THE public opinion battle for the Marshall Plan is expected to be borne by those women's and church groups whom their opponents sneeringly call "do-gooders." Shock troops of course will be these organizations' legislative representatives—or lobbyists—in Washington.

As their hard-fought battles in the present session of Congress end, they look ahead to what may be their toughest campaign in their quarter century of lobbying. However, they will not go into combat as rookies. Proof of their veteran status is the way they are beginning to get under the skin of those professional lobbyists for private interests with whom they have been tangling over tariffs, utilities and atoms.

Some of these suave representatives emit sparks only at mention of women lobbyists. But their time-honored weapon of ridicule, "those poor little women don't know what they're talking about," is getting rusty.

WOMEN WHO appear before congressional committees have to know their stuff. Committee members unsympathetic to their cause delight in "taking 'em over the jumps"—trying to confuse them with technical questions having no bearing on the principle involved.

In their long and persistent work for reciprocal trade agreements many women witnesses have had to "ride the goat" before the House Ways and Means Committee. In a hearing recently a professor of international economics was kept on the rack for hours. She held her own so well that at the end her chief inquisitor complimented her—then fell back on the smear technique, charging that several members of her national board belonged to "subversive" organizations. The women named were of such national standing that the audience laughed.

This is nothing new to experienced women lobbyists. Since 1921, when those working for the Sheppard-Towner bill to "protect maternity and infancy" found it called a Bolshevist plot to abolish the family, they have met this kind of attack. What worries them more is when their opponents try to substitute a bad bill that sounds like a good one.

NO WOMAN lobbbyist for a cause will ever make the Big Ten—those representatives of organizations that this year spent more than an acknowledged $25,000 in the first quarter. A legislative representative of a club, church or consumer group receives only a living wage, has no expense account for cocktail parties, golf club memberships, lavish or intimate dinners, bottles of Scotch.

However she has one greater asset, that of impersonal motive, also an energy that makes her omnipresent on Capitol Hill where she calls on Congressmen, attends hearings, and sleuths bills lost or hidden in committees.

But her main work is done "back home." Leaders of women's groups are careful to have grass roots support of their membership in legislative programs. Through these rank and file members the chief appeal is made to Congress. But no longer does a club representative say to legislators, "I represent ten million women—" There is too much duplication of membership in women's organizations to make this convincing. Rather she presents evidence of how communities are feeling on an issue.

This is obtained by the home front army, which is kept informed of legislative developments on bills on which the group has taken a stand. These women write letters to their local newspapers, often get editorials printed, and make speeches which are reported. Clippings of these are more revealing to legislators of public sentiment than are letters. Women's groups know mass letters and telegrams are suspect, that the well reasoned individual letter counts most in congressional mail.

Most effective lobbying of the "do-gooders" has been for international measures—lend-lease, repeal of the neutrality act, Dumbarton Oaks proposals, Bretton Woods banking fund, world trade, loan to Britain. In this congressional session these groups lost some fights, won others. But their faith is spreading. Requests for information about their methods come from many foreign countries where women have just gotten the ballot.

Antipoll Tax Bill

In light of President Truman's speech on June 29 at the Lincoln Memorial, at the close of the convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, it seems that he would take this opportunity to put some of his most forceful and democratic statements into action by prevailing upon the Senate to pass, sans filibuster, the recently approved House antipoll tax measure.

The President referred to the present as the "turning point" in the long history of our country's effort to guarantee freedom and equality to all our citizens." By this statement I believe that the President intended to include those Southern citizens who are deprived of the opportunity to visit the polls until they show receipts received after having paid the poll tax.

The American move to insure free elections at the polls should begin at home, and this would be a step forward.

Strife In Java

By Barnet Nover

The Headaches Of Empire

NOVER

WHILE FIGHTING is still going on in isolated areas, both in Java and Sumatra, the Dutch troops appear to have made short work of the organized resistance put up by forces of the Indonesian Republic.

As a military operation, then, the campaign launched on July 22 can already be put down as a striking success. As a political venture, however, and the basic aims of the Dutch authorities are political, the campaign may prove something else again.

IN THE FIRST PLACE, there is the threat voiced by President Achmed Soekarno of the Indonesian Republic that the struggle will continue on a guerilla basis.

So far few Indonesian soldiers appear to have been taken prisoner. This suggests that they have melted into the civilian population or fled to the jungle with the intention of carrying on the fight from there.

Should that happen, the Dutch may be in for a prolonged, difficult and costly struggle.

In the second place, by resorting to force before they had exhausted all peaceful means to settle their differences with the Indonesian Republic, the Dutch, rightly or wrongly, have antagonized public opinion in India, Australia, Great Britain, the United States and elsewhere.

In condemnation of the Dutch stand the clause in the Cheribon agreement of November 12, 1946, is cited. There it is stipulated that in the event of a dispute over the terms of that pact outside mediation be sought. Such mediation was offered by the British government but was rejected.

THE DUTCH contention is that the chief obstacle that stood in the way of the carrying out of the Cheribon agreement was one involving a principle that they could not arbitrate.

That was the principle that during the interim period before the coming into being of the United States of Indonesia on January 1, 1949, the maintenance of order in Java, Sumatra and Madura (the islands that are to form part of the Republic of Indonesia) should be a joint enterprise of the Dutch and the Indonesians.

Soekarno opposed this demand. He has insisted that the job of policing should be left entirely in the hands of the Indonesian Republic.

It was on this point that the Dutch-Indonesian negotiators remained deadlocked for weeks while the fabulously rich area, whose products the world badly needs, remained in a state of chaos.

On May 27, 1947, negotiations were broken off by the Dutch. Sporadic civil war, ending the truce made the previous October, broke out anew. Finally, having completely lost patience with Soekarno and his henchmen, the Dutch decided to use military means to enforce their views.

THE STORY is a tangled one and it would be a mistake to assume that right is entirely on one side.

The Dutch have certainly made mistakes. They may have let their impatience get the better of them, particularly after they had assembled a sufficient number of well-trained and well-equipped troops in the islands, which they did not have when Indonesia was liberated from the Japanese. They may have succumbed to the temptation to use superior military force to achieve political ends.

On the other hand, it would be a cardinal error for Americans to assume that Achmed Soekarno is a Javanese George Washington, a knight in shining armor, without fear and without reproach.

SOEKARNO'S record during the war does not bear out that view.

It may be too much to say that he played the role of a quisling. His basic loyalties were undoubtedly Javanese rather than Japanese. He was prompted, no doubt, by nationalist sentiments rather than by any desire to play the game of the occupying power. Nonetheless, he did play the Japanese game by making himself the mouthpiece of violent diatribes against the Allies, including the United States.

Curiously enough, he is now appealing to President Truman to intervene in the struggle in order to achieve those aims for which, he says, the Allies were fighting.

The fact is that while it is on the surface, a one-sided statement from a highly interested source, there is a good deal of truth in the Dutch contention that the attitude of the regime dominated by Soekarno has been one of "marked truculence and political expansionism" and that it has manifested some of the unpleasant aspects of a totalitarian regime.

It is obviously to the interests not only of the Indonesians and the Dutch but of the entire world that the fighting should cease as promptly as possible. It is also to the interests of all concerned that the liberated and enlightened plan of Indonesian federation proclaimed by the Dutch 17 months ago, should be carried out.

In this particular a major responsibility rests on the Netherlands government and its agents in the East Indies. A heavy responsibility rests on the Indonesian nationalist leaders as well. In emphasizing the one it is well for Americans not to forget the other.

Individual Money Incomes Show 10-Billion Rise for 1946

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Americans received 10 billion more in money incomes in 1946 than they did in 1945, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

During the same period individuals' holdings of liquid assets—Government bonds and bank accounts—rose 8 billion.

The findings were reported in the Federal Reserve Bulletin of July. They were based on surveys, made early in 1946 and early in 1947 by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center.

(The jump in incomes and liquid assets was measured only in money terms, not corrected by the increase in price levels which took place during the whole period. Thus the survey did not indicate the change in consumers' "real" incomes. The President's Council of Economic Advisers recently reported that individuals' per capita real income has declined over this period. Editor's note.)

60 Per Cent Above $2000

A significant finding of the survey was that in 1946, 60 per cent of all spending units (roughly, the family unit) had incomes above $2000 a year. In 1945, only 53 per cent of the units were up to this level.

The survey showed that in 1946, 40 per cent of America's family units had incomes below $2000 and held only 15 per cent of the total individuals' liquid assets.

Fifty per cent had incomes between $2000 and $5000 and had about half of the liquid assets.

The top 10 per cent had incomes of more than $5000, received almost one third of the total income and held about 40 per cent of all liquid assets.

Another important disclosure was what as compared to the beginning of 1946, three million fewer spending units reported that they held Government bonds in early 1947. But this decrease was offset by increased numbers of persons having savings accounts, so that the proportion of families having some form of liquid assets was about the same for both years.

Professional persons and managerial and self-employed businessmen most frequently held liquid assets, the study showed, and moreover, held relatively large amounts of them.

Less Among Unskilled

Unskilled workers most frequently held no liquid assets; about half of this group held none. And the majority of unskilled workers who did have some holdings had relatively small amounts.

Much the same situation was true with respect to increases in income.

"The shift of consumers toward higher income levels was particularly marked for such occupational groups as professional persons, managerial groups and self-employed businessmen, clerical and sales personnel and farm operators," the bulletin stated.

"There was no significant change in the income levels of skilled, semiskilled and unskilled workers.

"It is known that basic hourly wage rates for many of these workers were higher in 1946 than the year before, but on the average, the amounts of total annual income remained about the same.

"Spending units in the clerical and sales and the professional groups reported the largest number of increases in annual money incomes during 1946 while unskilled wage-earners reported the fewest increases."

In Remarkable Contrast

These findings were in remarkable contrast to the general impression to the effect that since VJ-Day organized labor — the skilled and unskilled workers—have benefited most from wage increases, while clerical and sales personnel, mostly unorganized, lagged behind.

Alluding to this point, the report stated that while the heads of spending units in the worker groups frequently received increases in basic hourly rates, those increases "must have been offset" by reductions in the number of hours worked plus loss of overtime premiums formerly received in war industries. Also many workers were "downgraded" to lower-paying jobs.

Welfare Economy Studies Put Off Until August 1

The Board of Public Welfare yesterday postponed until August 1 consideration of economy measures designed to make available funds to meet mounting assistance demands.

Yesterday's scheduled board meeting was postponed to give members additional time to study welfare appropriations in the 1948 budget, Principal Assistant Welfare Director Raymond Clapp revealed.

At the August 1 meeting, he said, these possible economy moves will be considered:

Slice 10 per cent from relief grants; reduce special diet payments required on doctors' orders for relief clients who are sick or recovering from illness; eliminate extra rental allowances, and stop relief payments to jobless persons waiting for unemployment compensation.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Through The Looking Glass

ONE OF MY secret agents has come across a document of such interest and importance that it is reproduced here. It is a dispatch from the Ambassador of Inner Utopia to his Foreign Minister.

Childs

With remarkable frankness, the Ambassador, who has only recently come to Washington as the first envoy of his country to this Capital, discusses the session of Congress just concluding. Here, with only the flowery diplomatic language edited out, is the dispatch:

"Excellency: It is doubtful that Your Excellency will appreciate the interest aroused here by a recent event which may or may not have come to your notice. This was the visit of the President to the Senate, which is the upper chamber of their Congress.

"It seems that never before in the history of the United States has it occurred that a President should sit on the floor of the Senate, the present Chief Executive being a former member of that body. This will, of course, impress you as very strange. In our own Parliament, the Prime Minister is on the floor each week, taking part in the debates.

"But, as I have tried to convey to Your Excellency from time to time, it is different here. I am gradually coming to learn the curious relationship—or lack of relationship—between the legislative branch of the Government and the executive. They are engaged, if I may put it so, in a kind of warfare.

"This comes about because the Chief Executive is a member of one party, the Democrats, and the majority in the Legislature are members of the other party, the Republicans. It is extraordinary that this could occur but it is the fact and, unhappily, this same division will prevail next year, too, since not until November of 1948 do the American people elect a new President.

"I HAVE come to realize, Excellency, that this is the explanation for much that otherwise I have been unable to understand. A request from the Executive is almost always ignored by the Legislature, and the Executive has repeatedly, as I have said in earlier dispatches, rejected the acts of the Parliament.

"You have several times inquired, Excellency, about the information program conducted by the Department of State. You have expressed a wonder that so rich and great a country as the United States should be restricting this elementary program at a time when the propaganda of the Soviet Union continues to be ever more pervasive and insistent. I have your telegram of July 20 informing me that the libraries maintained in Inner Utopia by the United States Information Service are now to be closed and expressing your profound regret that this should be so.

"I have in turn conveyed this regret to the Department of State. But I am coming to understand that the fault does not lie with the Department of State. It derives apparently from the suspicion in Congress of the agents of the executive branch of the Government who are carrying out the information program.

THIS IS A most extraordinary condition, Excellency, and the following I shall have to ask you to believe, even though I know it sounds scarcely rational. The party in control of the Legislature has deprived the Executive of 20 million dollars requested to pay tax collectors. These tax collectors, it seems quite clear, would be able to bring into the Treasury at least 400 million dollars by their efforts. Thus the Treasury is deprived of this very considerable revenue for reasons that must be related to partisan rivalry between the two parties in the two branches of the Government.

"I have recently read a book called Twentieth Century Congress, written by a member of the lower house, the Hon. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. This proposes, among other things, that the Executive send permanent ambassadors to the Congress who would have their offices in the Capitol and meet with a policy-making committee of legislators. I shall send you a copy of this book, as it may help you to understand the dilemma of the Government in Washington.

"The American people have so many qualities of greatness—their capacity to organize industry, their energy, their good will. Yet they submit to the handicap of a divided Government. I beg to remain, yours, etc."

Eisler Compared Himself To Karl Marx, FBI Agent Says

Gerhart Eisler compared himself to Marx and Engels, the great German Communist leaders, in a speech in New York on December 11, 1946, an FBI special agent testified yesterday in District Court.

The agent, Edward F. Miles, said he attended the meeting, held at the Fraternal Club House, 110 W. 48th st. in New York, and that Eisler then said he wanted to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee he never denied being a Communist.

The 10-day-old trial, in which the alleged No. 1 Communist agent is charged with passport fraud, proceeded slowly. Lawyers argued most of the day—with jury excluded—over admissibility of testimony given by Francis X. Plant, another FBI agent.

Withhold 11 Points

Justice James W. Morris finally withheld from the five-woman, seven-man jury all but three of the 14 points in Plant's testimony to which Eisler's attorneys objected.

The afternoon session was enlivened when Defense Attorney Abraham J. Isserman vehemently accused Government Attorney William Hitz of "bad faith." Hitz had asked Plant two questions not covered in Plant's testimony while the jury was out of the courtroom.

"I professionally, officially and personally resent the remark," Hitz told the court.

Wants Complete Record

Justice Morris said he found "nothing to substantiate" Isserman's charge but declined to strike the comment from the court record. He said he wanted a complete record of all that took place to go to any court of review.

Isserman earlier asked the court to obtain depositions from Tim Buck, alleged Canadian Communist leader, now in Toronto, and from the superintendent of the Canadian penitentiary at Kingston, Ontario.

A Government witness, Manning Johnson, of Oakland, Calif., testified July 18 that Buck and a "man named Carr," another Canadian Communist, were present at a secret Communist meeting in Buffalo in 1933. Eisler and Earl Browder, former general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, also were present at that meeting, Johnston said.

Isserman yesterday read a telegram from Buck which said: "I could not have been in Buffalo in 1933 because at that time I was in Kingston Penitentiary and was only released November 24, 1934."

Miles, the only new witness yesterday, said 800 persons attended the Fraternal Club House meeting in New York, a meeting for "the defense of Eisler," at which Eisler spoke. Chief Defense Counsel Isserman, Miles said, presided at the meeting.

After mentioning he never denied being a Communist, Eisler then said there were two other Germans who were Communists "but Marx and Engels are dead," Miles testified.

Senora Peron to Visit Switzerland, Go Home

Paris, July 25 (U.P.).—Senora Eva Peron, wife of the Argentine President, will visit Switzerland in response to an invitation from the Swiss government when she leaves France, Argentine Ambassador Julio Victorica Roca said today.

Senora Peron will leave Paris either today or tomorrow by car or plane for Monte Carlo. Later, she will board a ship at Genoa, Italy, and stop at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil and Montevideo, Uruguay, for visits before returning to Buenos Aires, he added.

Two Testify Red Minority Controls Union

By the United Press

Two former Communists testified yesterday that a small group of Communists "working like beavers" had taken over local and international divisions of the CIO's United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union.

The testimony was given to the House Un-American Activities Committee by James J. Conroy of New York, business agent for Local 1237 of the union, and Salvadore M. Vottis, a former member of the UEW's Schenectady, N. Y., local and also former president of Schenectady CIO Industrial Council.

Movie Industry Next

After hearing their testimony, the committee suspended activity until September 23 when it will begin hearings into alleged communism in the Hollywood movie industry. First witness is scheduled to be Music Writer Hans Eisler, brother of Gerhart Eisler, on trial here now on passport fraud charges.

Conroy, who said he broke with the Communists over the issue of religion, named for the committee 15 national and local UEW officials whom he believed to be Communists. He said, however, that less than 1 per cent of the total membership belongs to the party.

But, he said, this small minority has taken over the union "lock, stock and barrel" by "working like beavers." He said Communists have "very strong control of the union through the international representatives and field organizers."

Disagree on Two

Conroy and Vottis disagreed about the alleged Communist leanings of Julius Emspach, secretary-treasurer of the union, and James Matles, its chief organizer. Other witnesses have described them as Communists.

Conroy said that to his knowledge neither is a Communist, but Vottis said "they are both members of the Communist Party to my knowledge." He testified that he signed up Emspach as a member of the party in 1935.

Vottis said he joined the Communist Party out of a sense of personal frustration but eventually concluded that it "was the worst totalitarian party that ever existed."

Conroy said he joined in 1940 because he was convinced that "I could best serve the interests of the people I was working for by being a member of the party." He said he resigned on March 21, 1946, because of a "vicious, unprincipled attack against the head of my church." Conroy is a Catholic.

House Votes $440,000 for Investigators

By The Associated Press

The House yesterday voted $440,000 for additional expenses of its investigating committees, over the protests from the floor that there are too many "junkets" under way.

The new money raises to $1,072,000 the total the House has given its special investigating groups, many of which have arranged extensive foreign and domestic trips for the forthcoming recess period.

Today's allotments, which do not require Senate approval, went to these standing committees which have been given special inquiry powers:

Agriculture, $50,000; Armed Services, planning trip to Europe and the Far East, $25,000; Public Works, $30,000; Foreign Affairs, planning numerous foreign trips, $125,000; Expenidtures, which has subcommittees investigating Government propaganda, the State Department, and surplus property, $30,000; Labor, $25,000; Ways and Means, $25,000.

In addition, the House gave $125,000 to the Special Committee to Study Foreign Economic Needs.

The smallest amount—$5000—was given the House Administration Committee, which has the duty, among other things, of investigating the financial needs of House committees.

The Gallup Poll

Americans and British Differ On Job Guarantee by State

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 25.—Opinion in Great Britain and the United States is pulling in opposite directions on the question of government's role in the nation's economic life.

Two conflicting philosophies are involved. One holds that the important job of government is to guarantee jobs and provide security. That is the general philosophy of a majority of British voters today under the Labor regime.

The other philosophy holds that government should assist private enterprise by simply making sure that there are opportunities for people to get ahead on their own. The weight of public opinion in America is on the side of that philosophy, although a sizable segment want to have the government guarantee minimum standards.

To determine the course which voters in both countries like best the British and American Institutes of Public Opinion polled representative cross sections in their respective countries. Respondents were asked,

Which one of these statements do you most agree with? They were handed a card which read:

A. The most important job for the Government is to make it certain that there are good opportunities for each person to get ahead on his own.

B. The most important job for the Government is to guarantee every person a decent and steady job.

The national results were:

	U. S.	Britain
Make opportunities	50%	40%
Guarantee jobs	43	55
No opinions	7	5

In both countries preference for a straight private enterprise system was found to be highest among the professional, business and white-collar groupings. Approximately 60 per cent of these groups oppose government-controlled minimum standards compared to less than 40 per cent among wage earners.

As a general rule, a smaller percentage of every group in England's population would limit the role of government than is the case in this country.

As might be expected, 72 per cent of Labor Party voters in Great Britain express confidence in the opposite policy—guaranteeing of jobs—against 35 per cent among the Conservative and National Liberal voters.

As reported in May, the American Institute found 50 per cent of Democratic voters in favor of guaranteed jobs and only 35 per cent of Republicans.

Women in both countries are more inclined than men to go along with the theory that government should guarantee jobs.

The difference in attitude between citizens of the two great Western democracies may be explained partially by the economic distress under which the British labored even before the war.

The desire of a large number of English voters to have their government assume a larger part in business life has revealed itself in previous British Institute polls. A majority of respondents, for example, have approved the nationalization of railways, land and coal mines. The Attlee government has been moving toward these goals.

This Nation has lagged behind Britain in enacting social legislation. Unemployment insurance took full effect in England two decades before the New Deal era.

Religion in Action

Retired D. C. Policeman, Wife Run Woodland Beach Church

A retired Washington traffic policeman and his wife supervise the Community Church at the Woodland Beach (Md.) summer resort.

They are the Rev. Mrs. Orra N Brant, who serves without pay as pastor, and Clarence E. Brant, secretary of the congregation's executive committee.

Mrs. Brant has refused to take any salary for her service, because she believes "the weekly offerings should go toward building and other improvements."

"I felt that no salary should be paid a minister in Woodland Beach," says Mrs. Brant, "since the population consists mostly of summer residents who have their own churches in Washington or Baltimore to support."

Mrs. Grant credits her husband with helping, physically and spiritually, to build the church.

"He made all the fires and repairs, as well as helping on additions and improvements to the building," said Mrs. Brant. "He has faithfully kept a record of attendance and offerings at all services and is our official bell-ringer."

The Brants' sons helped erect the present chapel when they were boys. They are Capt. Robert E. Brant, USMC, now at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Calif., and Donald Brant, a former Marine. Both saw overseas war service.

Mrs. Brant says she discovered the need for church activity at Woodland Beach in 1935, when she gave up Washington church work to be with her husband and boys there.

In the spring of 1936, she began teaching Sunday School in the Woodland Beach Club House, with the aid of Mrs. A. Markley, who had conducted classes there in 1935.

Mrs. Brant

Brant

Mrs. Brant discovered that no church had taken up the real estate firm's offer of lots to any church that would build there. So she promised Dr. Thomas Ward, of Washington, then president of the Woodland Beach Property Owners' Association, that she would build a church if given the site.

Because of beach activities, the Sunday services are just an hour long—from 11 a. m. until noon. Sessions are held for children while church services are on. There are also services during the winter for the permanent residents.

The congregation was organized July 1, 1936, with 25 charter members. The present building was designed, and construction supervised, by the Rev. A. A. Gott, an inactive minister living near Woodland Beach. The church was dedicated May 3, 1938.

Mrs. Brant was ordained April 21, 1942, in the Non-Sectarian Tabernacle at Hyattsville, Md. Several years ago she received her preaching license from the Supreme Court.

Fifth Baptist To Celebrate 90th Birthday

Fifth Baptist Church, 609 E st. sw., will celebrate its ninetieth anniversary tomorrow.

The Rev. John T. Coburn, who will become pastor of the church September 1, will preach at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. The Rev. Colburn has been at Jefferson Street Baptist Church in Roanoke, Va., for the past 14 years, and is a past president of the Roanoke Ministers Conference.

Following the evening service, there will be a fellowship meeting with a 60-pound birthday cake, decorated with 90 candles. Those who have been members of the church for 50 or more years will be presented with certificates. A musical program has been planned, and invitations have been extended to all former members of the church. Ninety members will contribute $10 each to the remodeling fund, as a birthday gift.

During the 90-year history, the church has had only four ministers. Dr. C. C. Meador, who organized Fifth Baptist Church in 1857, continued as pastor for 47 years. He was succeeded by Dr. Weston Bruner, now retired, and Dr. John E. Briggs who occupied the pulpit for 34 years. The Rev. J. Herrick Hall, who has served as pastor for the past six years and has recently retired, will be succeeded in September by Coburn.

Charles Woodson Will Be Ordained At Chevy Chase

Charles R. Woodson will be ordained to the ministry at 11 a. m. tomorrow at Chevy Chase Baptist Church, where he has been assistant pastor while studying at Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa.

Dr. George W. Davis, professor of Christian Theology at Crozer, will preach the ordination sermon. Dr. S. Blind Teacher Is Inspiration to Bible Class

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

You could understand why Wade H. Mitchell spoke about the need of faith amid suffering.

You see, Mitchell has been blind since childhood.

Yet he never lost faith in God, his fellow men or himself, he says. Forgetting his handicap, he became a brilliant Biblical student; was recently elected president of the National Society for the Blind; is a member of the District Bar and manages a Treasury Building concession.

He is an inspiration to the Bible classes of Hamline Methodist Church. They listened with admiration Sunday as he stood confidently before them and spoke about the patience and faith of the Old Testament prophet Job.

"When Job was enduring his trials, he tried to reason out why good people should suffer," said Mitchell. He said many folks held an erroneous conception of God's power, "feeling that human suffering is some sort of Divine retribution." He said human goodness was no guarantee against suffering and cautioned against "finite minds trying to reason out infinite judgment and wisdom."

Mitchell is assistant teacher of the Sparkman Men's Bible Class, of which Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) is teacher. The adult classes hold joint sessions during the summer.

The blind teacher studied to be a piano tuner at the Virginia School for the Blind and graduated from George Washington University Law School in 1927. He and his wife, a Justice Department employe, live at 3542 Hertford pl. nw.

TEACHES LESSON—Wade H. Mitchell, recently elected president of the National Society for the Blind, a member of the D. C. Bar and manager of a concession in the Treasury Building, is shown teaching the Sunday School lesson to the combined adult classes at Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw. Mitchell, blind since childhood, is assistant teacher of the Sparkman Bible Class of Men

Comic Books' Reading Value Emphasized

Chicago, July 25 (AP).—Comic books "have something which other books do not," a New York children's book researcher said today.

And some of our most beloved classics "are out of step with the times," Miss Josette Frank, in charge of the children's books and radio division of the Child Study Institute of America, told the conference on language in human relations at Northwestern University.

"Comic books are easy of approach and they constitute no challenge," she continued. "Some of them contain some pretty good reading vocabulary. They have action. Events move quickly. Plenty of things happen and there is never any question of what the action is or of how it will terminate.

"I believe that when a child becomes familiar with the words, action and meaning which make up a story, it is a reading experience which has value for future reading. Any reading experience is good experience. We will have to recognize the pleasure principle in reading."

Sunday School Meeting Hits At Communism

Des Moines, July 25 (AP).—Resistance to "atheistic communism and all other Godless materialisms" was pledged today in a statement of objectives read to the Twenty-first International Sunday School Convention.

A statement, presented by officers of the International Council of Religious Education, said further:

"Because Marxian communism has repudiated the foundations of truth as they are in Jesus Christ and is actively endeavoring to undermine this faith and to overthrow our Christian institutions, it is a foe which we must and will oppose."

In an address prepared for a dinner meeting tonight, J. L. Kraft, chairman of Kraft Foods Co., Chicago, said the answer to the question of what is man's responsibility is found in the Bible quotation: "Fear God, and keep His commandments."

Thomas J. Watson, head of the International Business Machines Corp., New York City, was honored tonight as the 1947 recipient of the National Russel Colgate award, a recognition given annually since 1944 in memory of Colgate, former president of the council.

Synod Votes Names Change

Chicago, July 25 (AP).—The centennial convention of the Evangelical Lutherna Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other States, voted today to change the name of the Synod to the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod.

Acceptance of the new name hinges on approval by congregations of the synod, who will vote on the new name within the next year. If the new title is rejected by more than one third of the congregations, it will not be adopted.

Earlier today, the convention adopted a resolution urging closer missionary work with the deaf after a Minnesota pastor illustrated in sign language the words of the hymn, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow."

Dr. Robert E. Taylor, general secretary of the American Bible Society, told the convention a recent survey of Germany showed that an estimated seven million bibles were needed there. Dr. Taylor said that for a period of more than eight years there was "practically no Bible production in Germany."

Senate Suspends Rules On Judge Nomination

By The Associated Press

The Senate last night suspended its rules so that the Judiciary Committee may retain the nomination of Herbert W. Christenberry to be a Federal district judge for eastern Louisiana.

Chairman Wiley (R., Wis.) of the Judiciary group asked and obtained the suspension in view of the recess which Congress plans to start tomorrow.

Othewise the nomination would have had to be returned to the President within 30 days after the Senate recessed or adjourned.

2 Explosions In Jerusalem Are Harmless

Jerusalem, July 25 (AP).—Two explosions started alarm sirens wailing in Jerusalem tonight as British troops rushed to emergency stations, but official sources said neither blast had caused any damage or casualties.

The first explosion occurred in the western part of the Holy City and the second, reportedly caused by a time bomb, was in the eastern part in the neighborhood of military headquarters.

Meanwhile, Jewish sources said a refugee ship named "Return to Zion" was just outside Palestine's territorial waters and was being shadowed by British destroyers. This vessel reportedly was carrying 400 uncertified Jewish immigrants. There was no confirmation of a report that a second and larger ship also wa sapproaching Palestine.

Hagana Patrols Coast

Villefranche-Sur-Mer, France, July 25 (U.P.).—Agents of the Jewish underground organization Hagana were posted at points all along the French Mediterranean coast today, seeking to organize resistance by approximately 4500 refugees en route from Palestine in British transports.

Port officials heard that the ship —Empire Vigour, Ocean Vicour and Runnymede Park—might arrive tonight or tomorrow morning.

Taft Rules Out Consideration Of Perlman in Night Session

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said last night the Senate would not consider the nomination of Philip B. Perlman of Baltimore to be Solicitor General at its night session.

Taft made the statement in reply to an inquiry from Senator Tydings (D., Md.) as to whether the Senate might act on any nominations last night. The Ohio Senator said none would be called up.

Earlier, Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) filed with the Senate yesterday a 6000-word report asserting that Perlman, Baltimore Democrat, is not qualified to be confirmed as Solicitor General.

Ferguson, chairman of a judiciary subcommittee which conducted two-month-long hearings on the nomination, submitted his minority report near the close of the Senate's Thursday night session.

The Michigan Senator was the lone membeer of 11 on the full judiciary committee to vote against approval of Perlman's nomination, made by President Truman in January.

He said in his report that "the accumulation of evidence" in the 300,000 words of testimony taken by the subcommittee "in my opinion cast a serious cloud of reasonable doubt" over Perlman's qualifications.

The report made the following allegations:

1. Perlman presnted "misleading" evidence to the subcommittee regarding alterations in City of Baltimore tax records in a tax fraud case 25 years ago. Ferguson termed this "inexcusable" and said it demonstrated a "lack of candor" and "casts a shroud upon his (Perlman's) good faith."

2. Perlman was considered in Maryland "an instrument in directing the political affairs of the State."

3. In his law practice the nominee primarily represented "special interests" who wanted "special consideration" from muhicipal or State bodies and hired Perlman for "behind-the-scenes' 'service.

4. Perlman would have "a very real conflict of interest and obligation" is confirmed as solicitor general in event litigation arose concerning two former clients; the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the Baltimore Transit Co.

Ferguson said the railroad had "extensive dealings" with the Reconstruction Finance Corp., and a Federal antitrust suit now is pending "against the parent company" of the BTC.

5. Perlman "should have registered" as a lobbyist when he represented the BTC before the Maryland State Legislature.

Ferguson mentioned an opinion for Perlman by the Maryland attorney general—obtained one day after Perlman requested it—which supported Perlman's contention he was not required to register. That, Ferguson said, "testifies significantly to the peculiar circumstances in which Mr. Perlman has established himself in his own political community."

6. "Full cooperation was not forthcoming" from Perlman at subcommittee hearings and "time and effort" might have been saved "had he been somewhat more candid or helpful in the presentation of facts."

7. Perlman worked behind the scenes" in the interests of the Automatic Voting Machine Co., Jamestown, N. Y., which sold machines for more than one million dollars in and around Baltimore.

Ferguson noted Perlman received $44,000 in fees from the company, but was "conspicuously absent from the foreground" in any "purely legal" matters which came up.

Boy Kills Cousin In Reenactment Of Radio Drama

Middletown, N. J., July 25 (AP).—Two cousins were reenacting a murder drama they had heard on the radio a few moments before.

Today, Assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor John M. Pillsbury reconstructed the re-enactment:

"Get 'em up, this is a stickup," ordered the younger boy, 13, to Ephametius Buffaloe, 17, in the dining room of their grandmother's home last night. He was standing behind his cousin, just like the gunman in the drama.

"Okay, you asked for it," the 13-year-old boy said and he pulled the trigger of the .38-caliber revolver he had found in a drawer.

Ephametius fell dead.

Police took him to the juvenile shelter in Freehold. Pillsbury said the boy told him he did not know the revolver was loaded.

Lewis Visits Illinois Town Where Mine Blast Killed 27

West Frankfort, Ill., July 25 (AP). John L. Lewis, AFL United Mine Workers' president, made an unheralded visit today to this southern Illinois town where 27 coal diggers perished in a mine disaster officially ascribed to a gas explosion.

With hundreds of miners lining the streets to get a glimpse of him, Lewis conferred for an hour with officials of the Old Ben Coal Corp., in whose No. 8 mine the tragedy occurred, yesterday and with local local union officials and his brother, Howard, underground superintendent at the mine.

Although reserving comment on the explosion, Lewis told a reporter, "I am extremely anxious to see that dependents' compensation is cleared quickly and satisfactorily to all survivors."

The work of identifying victims neared completion in the gymnasium of Central Junior High School.

No Question of Laxness

No question of laxness in operation of the mine was raised. Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois, who spoke briefly with Lewis and questioned four injured survivors, said he was satisfied there had been full compliance with safety laws.

Green said the last State mine inspection on May 29 indicated that all regulations had been met.

Harold L. Walker, State director of mines, said the entry where the blast occurred had been thoroughly rock-dusted to allay coal dust Wednesday night—the night before the explosion.

William Gallagher, a Federal mine inspector, who joined rescue workers in the mine passages 500 feet below the earth's surface last night, said today that "it was a gas explosion. There's no question of that."

Three injured men remained in the hospital.

Seven thousand coal miners stayed away from work today in 12 Franklin County mines, as a mourning gesture.

Revitalized Nats Win 4th in Row, 5-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

AT A TIME WHEN the Dodgers have zoomed into a 5½-game lead in the National League pennant race, the situation is not wholly satisfactory in Brooklyn. There's a deep rumble now audible, and it's easily identified as the St. Louis Cardinals poised for another of their August-September rushes that have beaten the Dodgers out of pennants in previous years.

POVICH

The Cardinals are still 5½ games out of it, as of last night, but they would be closer except for the sudden winning streak of the Dodgers, who have gained ground despite the recent surge of the Cards. It all ought to be very ominous for Brooklyn, though. Not so many seasons ago, the Cards wiped out a nine-game lead of the Dodgers in one month and headed 'em off for the pennant.

Biggest factor in the Cardinals' drive is the resurgence of Stan Musial at bat. He was barely hitting .200 a month ago, but during the 24 games in July he has been swatting at a .325 rate to bring his average up to the more respectable figure of .273. That's far below his .369 of last season, but he has started to move and the Cardinals go no place unless Musial is hitting.

MEANWHILE THE MANAGER of the Year in the National League is indisputably gray-haired Burt Shotton, who has the Dodgers out front winging in a year when they were supposed to be handicapped by the suspension of Leo Durocher. The Durocher inspiration was credited with landing the Dodgers in a pennant tie last season, but Shotton apparently is exposing that myth.

Without Durocher or Charley Dressen, the exhibitionists, the Dodgers have been winning more frequently this year than in 1946. Shotton, working in a quiet way with his club, is getting better results, even in a year when the club's best catcher, Bruce Edwards, is out of the lineup with a sore arm, and its best ballplayer, Pete Reiser, is spending more time under doctor's care than he is in the lineup.

Burt Shotton has more to contend with in hanging on to his league lead than do the Yankees, who are topping an otherwise weak American League. Not only the Cardinals, but the Giants and Braves are crowding Brooklyn. Those clubs aren't noted for any stretch-rush habits like the Cards, however. Shotton knows the club he has to lick.

IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE, Bucky Harris is in the softest spot any league-leading manager ever found himself at this point of the season. He has the Yankees out in front by 12 games and nothing to his rear to worry about. There isn't another good team in the league, and the Yanks would probably win by playing .500 ball for the rest of the year.

The Tigers and Red Sox, who virtually share second place, pose no worries for Harris. Buck Newsom called the turn on the Tigers last spring when he said they were no pennant contenders. "Their pitchers can't hit enough," said Bobo. It was his quaint way of acknowledging that the Detroit pitchers were good, but carried too big a burden in the light-hitting batting order of the Detroit club.

Detroit's recent three-game appearance in Griffith Stadium was pretty sad. Against Washington pitching, the Tigers were shut out in two games, and held to one run (unearned) in the other. Manager Steve O'Neill never knows where his next run-batted-in is coming from, and it's a compliment to the Detroit pitching that the club is as high as second.

FROM THE RED SOX, the Yankees have little to fear. The Boston pitching has been sour all season, and Joe Cronin after juggling his third basemen without success is finally operating with Sam Dente, late of Louisville, who wasn't good enough for the club earlier in the year. Dom DiMaggio has been in a season-long slump and First Baseman Murrell Jones, after a sensational debut, has stopped hitting.

Harris is lucky not alone in the fact that he doesn't have much to lick, but in the help he has gotten from his reserves. When Charley Keller bogged down with a back injury, Johnny Lindell replaced him and proceeded to hit better than Keller. A Boston pitcher broke the wrist of Third Baseman Bobby Brown and that was a blessing to the Yankees because Bill Johnson replaced the rookie and spurred the Yankees to their best performance.

The Yankees worked up that 19-game winning streak, too, at a time when Spud Chandler and his sore arm contributed only one victory. Frank Shea, their best pitcher, is also out with a sore arm, but they came up with Buck Newsom and Rookie Vic Raschi who reeled off six wins in six starts. The Yanks seemingly can do no wrong, at least not much.

Frick Rules Homer Okay Bums, Cards Replay Tie

By Gayle Talbot

New York, July 25 (AP).—When a baseball player clouts a home run, it's his, and not even an umpire can deprive him of his prize.

That, in effect, was the ruling of President Ford Frick of the National League today as he threw out Brooklyn's hotly-disputed 3-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals last Sunday at Ebbets Field and ordered the game to be replayed as part of a doubleheader on August 18.

In finding that Ron Northey, pudgy St. Louis outfielder, had indeed been prevented from scoring an inside-the-park home run in the ninth inning by the action of Umpire Beans Reardon in telling him to "slow down," the league president said he was basing his decision on "fairness, common sense and sportsmanship."

After carefully stating both sides of the argument, Frick said he would order the game placed in the records as having been a 3-3 tie, with the individual records of the players to stand except that no pitcher will be accorded a win or defeat. He did not specify that the two teams should line-up in the replay precisely as they did in the original game. He left that to the two managers.

Team Records Revised

The decision lopped one game off Brooklyn's "win" column in the standing and subtracted a loss from the Cards' record.

When the disputed play arose, the Cardinals were leading Brooklyn 2-0 in the first of the ninth. Northey whacked a towering fly into deep centerfield that hit on top of the railing in front of the boxes, bounced high in the air and fell back into the playing field. Reardon, umpiring at third, thought the ball had gone into the stands, and when Northey came puffing into third Reardon told him to take it easy.

Northey put on the brakes, and by the time he awakened to the true situation it was too late. On a fast relay he was thrown out at the plate. The Dodgers, quick to show their appreciation of Reardon's action, poured across three runs in their half of the inning to take the decision—that is, temporarily.

Reardon Admits 'Skull'

Today Frick said he didn't know why the three umpires didn't get together at the time of the mixup, admit a mistake had been made and award Northey his home run. Reardon, he said, had admitted frankly in his official report that he had pulled a "skull."

He recalled that exactly the same thing happened at Ebbets Field on July 3, 1942, when in a game between the Dodgers and Philadelphia, Pitcher Whitlow Wyatt of Brooklyn was thrown out after Umpire Tom Dunn had flagged him down as he rounded first base. That time the umpires settled it on the spot, awarding Wyatt the base he obviously would have made but for Dunn's mistake.

Frick took a somewhat devious route in deciding that last Sunday's game should be called a tie and be replayed from the start.

"Common practice has been in such instances to order a replay of the game from point of violation," he said. "Such ruling, however, would be obviously unfair to Brooklyn, since that club scored three legitimate runs in the last half of the ninth inning.

Argument Is Conjecture

"Both the St. Louis and Brooklyn clubs well might argue that the whole course of the game was changed by this action of the umpires. St. Louis could argue that allowing a run to Northey would still leave them with another out and a chance to increase their score.

Haefner Sets Tribe Down With Three Hits

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The revitalized Nats won their fourth straight game at home last night, trimming the Cleveland Indians, 5-1, behind Mickey Haefner's heady pitching.

The victory was the second straight and fifth of the season for Haefner who held the Indians to three hits.

The Nats took advantage of Steve Gromek's wildness and an error by Joe Gordon to pile up a 3-0 lead for Mickey Haefner in the first inning.

The Indians' right-hander walked Eddie Yost, first man to face him and then was put in deep trouble by Gordon who muffed Lowis' easy grounder; Robertson on an attempted sacrifice, forced Yost at third base, and Vernon also grounded into a force play.

With two out, however, Spence and Priddy drew consecutive walks from Gromek to force a run home, and Mark Christman singled solidly to center for two more runs.

Haefner, who pitched a 1-0 shutout against the Indians in his last start, yielded a useless single to Mitchell in the opening inning and then turned in four innings of hitless ball to preserve his 3-0 lead.

Haefner was still pitching one-hit ball going into the seventh, and the only Indian to reach base against him was Mitchell, who got the first-inning hit.

The Nats had only three hits themselves. Heafner opened the fifth inning with a single off Gromek that was fruitless, and in the sixth Spence got the club's third hit, an equally useless single off Bryan Stephens, who came into the game after Gromek was removed for a pinch hitter.

The first walk of the game issued by Haefner paved the way for a Cleveland run in the seventh. With one out he passed Seerey and Lou Boudreau scored him with a double to deep center that was the Indian's second hit of the night.

The Cleveland run ended a scoreless streak of 28 consecutive innings turned in by Washington pitchers over a span of four games.

In their own half of the seventh, the Nats improved their lead to 5-1, with runs that stemmed from a pair of walks issued to Haefner and Buddy Lewis by Stephens.

Robertson singled sharply to right to score Haefner, and Vernon singled to center scoring Lewis. Ed Klieman was sent to the mound to relieve Stephens.

Yanks Sock Chisox for Reynolds' 12th

New York, July 25 (AP).—Starting with Yogi Berra's two-run homer in the first inning the New York Yankees uncorked a 14-hit barrage against four Chicago White Sox pitchers today to blister the visitors, 12-4, in a series opener.

Allie Reynolds, who had a one-hitter for the first six innings, coasted home with his twelfth victory although the Sox hit him freely in the late stages. Rudy York broke the shutout bid with his tenth homer in the seventh.

Starter Bob Gillespie was clipped for Berra's eight homer in the three-run opener and was charged with his fifth loss before he departed under heavy fire in the fourth.

Joe DiMaggio kept his batting streak alive by singling in the third to make it 13 successive hitting games. George McQuinn contributed two singles and a double to the attack on Gillespie.

They Leap Away at Start

THIS exceptional action (and it's really that) picture was taken during the final heat of the turtle derby yesterday held in the gymnasium of the Boys Club of Washington, 17th and Massachusetts ave. Polka Dot Susie Hotfoots Her Way to Derby Glory

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

IF you happened to run into Polka Dot Susie on a path in the woods, you'd never believe it.

The way those legs can unchri into well nigh a gallop . . . the wise look in those red-orange eyes . . .

But yesterday, easy as that, the Polka Dot gal showed her class by creeping her way to glory in the Washington Boys Club terrapin derby.

As an audience of 200 shrieked and slapped, the unperturbed turtle rrossed the 15 feet to victory without a blink, leaving four other last-round contenders inches—at least—behind.

Two fellow-contestants, Man O'War and Greasy, refused to budge. Captain and Destroyer came in second and third, respectively. Their masters are Donald Hatton, 10, of 1346 G st. se., and Bernard Spalding, 11, of 310 15th st. se.

Interviewed later, Andy Chiacchieri, 8, of 707 C st. ne., the proud owner of Polka Dot Susie, confessed she was no gal of aristocratic origin—he found her in an alley—and what's more she hadn't been specially trained either.

"I leave her in the backyard and don't bother with her at all," he said.

Andy's pet won him a pair of water goggles, a baseball bat and a baseball.

Mize Slams 29th But Cubs Beat Giants 5-3

Chicago, July 25 (AP).—Despite Johnny Mize's twenty-ninth homer of the season with two men on base in the fifth inning, the Chicago Cubs toppled the New York Giants today, 5-3, with Paul Erickson going all the way for his first complete game since June 5 when he defeated the Giants.

Peanuts Lowrey gave the Cubs an early lead with his fourth homer of the year off Clint Hartung in the third, but Mize sent the Giants out front.

Manager Charley Grimm and the Cubs argued that Mize's drive had lodged in the vines on the right centerfield wall, but the umpires turned deaf ears to the plea.

Three runs in the fifth on singles by Andy Pafko, Phil Cavarretta, Clyde McCullough and pinch hitter Dom Dallessandro and a walk sent the Cubs ahead to stay.

Haefner Sets Tribe Down With Three Hits

By Shirley Povich

The revitalized Nats won their fourth straight game at home last night, trimming the Cleveland Indians, 5-1, behind Mickey Haefner's heady pitching.

The victory was the second straight and fifth of the season for Haefner who held the Indians to three hits.

Ticket Seller's Mistake Returns Him $533.20

Oceanport, N. J., July 25 (AP).—J. M. Birmingham, who sells mutuel tickets at Monmouth Park, made a mistake the other day that paid off $533.20.

He punched out three $5 tickets on Mr. Flip in the First race and then discovered they were not the ones the customer wanted. He tried to sell the three tickets, but couldn't find any customers—nobody thought much of Mr. Flip's chances.

Finally Birmingham paid for them himself.

Mr. Flip ran first, paid $71.10 for each $2 ticket and Birmingham collected the $533.20. He celebrated by buying huge quantities of chocolate bars for distribution to his coworkers.

Trabert Upsets Herbert Behrens

South Bend, Ind., July 25 (AP).—Bids of two favored Southerners for the junior singles title of the Western junior and boys' tennis tournament were snuffed out today as two underdog Northern lads won semifinals victories.

Fifth-ranked Tony Trabert of Cincinnati scored the biggest upset as he won over top-seeded Herbert Behrens of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 1—6, 9—7, 6—2, and third-seeded Alex Hetzeck of Hamtranck, Mich., made the northern sweep complete by stopping Dick Mouledous of New Orleans, 6—1, 4—6, 6—4.

Behrens and Mouledous bounced back to win their doubles semifinal match, however, defeating Keston Deimling and Grant Golden of Chicago, 6—0, 4—6, 6—3.

The Southerners were denied a chance for revenge against Hetzeck and Trabert in the doubles when the latter pair bowed to Sidney Schwartz of Brooklyn, N. Y., and McDonald Mathey of Princeton, N. J., 4—6, 6—3, 6—2.

Dodgers Stop Pittsburgh, 4-1

Pittsburgh, July 25 (AP).—The front-running Brooklyn Dodgers snapped a Pittsburgh three-game winning streak tonight, defeating the Bucs, 4-1, before a crowd of 42,014, largest of the season in the Steel City. Ed Stanky smacked out a homer to score one of Brooklyn's two first-inning tallies.

Merricks Ends With Win

Merrick Boys' Club closed its regular season by defeating Maloney Concrete, 5-2, yesterday in a Midget Baseball League game at the Ellipse, as Dena Vinagara won his tenth game.

Baltimore Colts Open Drill With 70 Players on Hand

Hershey, Pa., July 25 (AP).—Light limbering-up drills were the order of the day as the Baltimore Colts of the All-American professional football conference opened preseason training here this afternoon.

More than 70 hopefuls reported to Coach Cecil Isbell, who must whittle the squad down to about half that number before the Colts open their first campaign in pro gridiron warfare against Brooklyn on September 5.

A complete physical examination was on the agenda before heavy work and contact drills could be launched.

Among aspirants who arrived early were:

Ernie Case, masterminding quarterback from UCLA.

Doc Mobley, leading ground gainer of the Nation when he cavorted for Hardin-Simmons.

All-American Hub Bechtol of Texas.

Pat O'Brien and Barry French, who played under Isbell at Purdue.

Tomorrow's schedule calls for morning and afternoon workouts, after dinner chalk talks and conferences between Isbell and his coaching staff—Tom Stidham, Don Edmonds, Tarzan Taylor and Nick Campofreda.

Last evening was devoted largely to relaxation and enabling the candidates to become better acquainted with each other and the men who will direct them through the next six weeks of preparation for the season curtain-raiser.

Mulloy, Parker Play for Title

Sea Bright, N. J., July 25 (AP).—Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., seeded No. 2, staged a great rally in the Sea Bright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club invitation tournament today, coming from behind to beat unseeded James Brink of Seattle, Wash., and gain the championship round of the men's singles in the fifty-ninth annual grass courts classic. The scores were 3—6, 4—6, 9—7, 6—1, 6—3.

Mulloy joined the top-seeded Frank Parker of Los Angeles in the title round, the national third-ranked star having earlier vanquished fourth-seeded William Talbert, of Wilmington, Del., in a four-set duel, 6—0, 9—7, 3—6, and 6—3.

Front Office Appeal

Ruth Involved in Projected Shift of Browns to Coast

St. Louis, July 25 (AP).—Emory C. Perry, describing himself as a representative of a Chicago baseball syndicate that would have Babe Ruth in its front office, said today he was making an appraisal of the St. Louis Browns and expected to make an offer for the American League club.

Richard C. Muckerman, controlling stockholder of the Browns was out of the city but General Manager Bill Dewitt said: "If Mr. Perry is appraising the Browns, I know nothing about it. I've never met the man."

Perry, a consulting engineer of Chicago, said the syndicate would attempt to move the franchise to California, probably Los Angeles, if it bought the franchise.

Perry, a friend of Babe Ruth's for more than 25 years, said "we don't know just what we'll ask the Babe to do, but we want him around in the capacity of a consultant, at least."

Babe Roots for Mize 'To Keep It in Family'

Atlanta, July 25 (AP).—Babe Ruth says he expects his major league home run record of 60 for a baseball season to be broken eventually and if so he'd like to see Johnny Mize of the New York Giants do the trick "to keep it in the family."

The Babe then grinned shyly and explained that Mize is a second cousin of Mrs. Ruth.

Miami Guarantees Rocky $150,000 To Meet Zale

New York, July 25 (AP).—Rocky Graziano, recently crowned middleweight champion, who is still blacklisted in his home State of New York, today received a tempting offer of a $150,000 guarantee to defend his crown against former champ Tony Zale of Chicago in Miami next February. Zale has already accepted a $75,000 offer.

A few hours after Chairman Eddie Eagan of the New York State Athletic Commission had refused permission for presentation of the Ring magazine title belt to Graziano in the ring at Wednesday's Tami Mauriello-Gus Lesnevich bout for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund at Ebbets Field, Rocky's manager said he was considering the Miami offer.

Eagon pointed to a commission rule that no boxer whose license has been revoked can appear in a New York ring for any purpose.

Wright's 67 Leads Open

Columbus, Ohio, July 25 (AP).—This was Tom Wright day at the $10,000 Columbus Open golf meet as the 31-year-old unknown from Knoxville, Tenn., who has never won a king-size tournament, fired a 33-34—67, five under par, to pace a fine field through the first 18 holes of the $10,000, 72-hole medal play test.

Most of the top talent was back in the ruck as the favorite Arthur D'Arcy (Bobby) Locke, pulled up with a 33-37—70; Ben Hogan carded a 38-36—74 after a disastrous seven on the par-four fifth where he had tree trouble; Porky Oliver had a 36-38 for another 74, and Jimmy Demaret had a 35-36—71.

Knotted with Locke at 70 were Ky Laffoon, the Chicago Cherokee, and Al Smith of Danville, Va.

Four matched the card of 72 as Jim Ferrier, Australian-born PGA champion; Slammin' Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va.; Ed Furgol, the rigid-armed youngster from Pontiac, Mich., and E. J. Harrison romped in with par figures.

National Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington, who had trouble with his putter, was four over on the front nine for a 77.

Beck, Crossley Publinx Winners

Minneapolis, July 25 (AP).—Avery Beck of Raleigh, N. C., and Wilfred Crossley of Atlanta, Ga., won their semifinals matches in the National Public Links golf tourney, and will meet for the championship Saturday.

Crossley took a 4 and 3 decision over Don ,Dostert of St. Paul Minn. Beck, forced into extra holes by the gallant battle put up by Benjamin Hughes of Portland, Oreg., won one up on the thirty eighth.

Fuson Fourth Man In Army Backfield

The "Forgotten Man" or fourth member of West Point's famous backfield last year was Herschel (Ug) Fuson, right halfback, who with Glenn Davis, Doc Blanchard and Arnold Tucker led Army to its third straight undefeated season.

Yesterday The Washington Post carried a story telling of a query from a War Department employe, seeking that information. Fuson's name was not given, the story ending by asking the reader, "Do you know who he was?"

Our switchboard operator reported she was deluged with calls as early as 7 a. m.

Leech Cup Play Today

The United States Army defends the armed services team tennis championship against Navy today at 2 p. m. at Army-Navy Country Club in the first renewal of the Leech Cup tournament since 1939.

The Leech Cup tourney started back in 1924 with Army the winner the first two years. Navy then won the title 12 years in a row, before Army came back again in '39. The war stopped the series until Secretary of the Navy Forrestal hurled a challenge at Army's right to the cup three months ago.

Four singles matches will start the play at 2 p. m., with three doubles following immediately.

The first singles match will pit Lieut. Comdr. J. R. Behr, the Naval Academy singles king, against Lieut. Dave Freeman, winner last week of the All-Army championship.

Other singles will find Chief Yeoman E. J. Serues of the Navy opposing Capt. Charles Hippenstell; Lieut. Elston Syatt of Navy against T/Sergt. Tom Molloy and Capt. Jimmy Farrin of Navy against Pfc. Hugh W. Stewart.

In the doubles, Serues and Wyatt will face Freeman and Hippenstell, Farrin and Capt. W. E. Howard against Stewart and Molloy, and Behr and Lieut Comdr. Y. G. Holbrook against Maj. Tom Bonner and Lieut. Bob Boyer.

T.K.O. Verdict Overruled

Board Rates Barney Ross 'Great Guy—But No Referee'

Charlotte, N. C., July 25 (AP).—The Charlotte Boxing Commission today overruled Referee Barney Ross and declared last night's fight between Eddie (Red) Cameron, 187, of Miami, Fla., and Jimmy Boyle, 182, of Fort Bragg, N. C., "no contest."

Ross, the former welterweight champion, had awarded the fight to Cameron on a technical knockout in the seventh of a scheduled 10-round fight.

Commission Chairman Grady Cole said "Barney is a great guy, a grand fighter, a great man in the war, but he's no referee. Boyle might have come back to win, so the commissioners overruled his judgment in stopping the fight."

Cole said the commission thought Boyle was in no worse shape than Cameron was when he was knocked down three times in the second round.

He added: "If Boyle wasn't awarded the fight then, Cameron shouldn't have gotten it in the seventh. Ross told us that one more punch would have ended the fight. If so, why didn't he let Cameron throw the punch?"

"Ross told us that he stopped the fight because Boyle had been taking a bad beating," the chairman continued, "but a number of local fans told me earlier that they'd never come back to another fight if something wasn't done about that decision. They weren't satisfied and neither were we."

In defense of his decision, Ross said: "Boyle was standing there helpless, his hands at his side. He was just at the point where fighters get hurt seriously."

Rich Gold Cup, Arlington Top Racing Today

Two rich races, the $100,000 Gold Cup at Hollywood Park, and the $94,800 Arlington Classic with a first prize of $72,500 at Chicago, headline today's turf program.

A well-balanced cast of 13 candidates, headed by Olhaverry and Honeymoon, was named yesterday for the eighth running of Hollywood Park's annual summer splurge.

Others entered for the cup and the $75,000—plus reward for the winner—were:

Burning Dream, Cover Up, Lets Dance, Texas Sandman, Triplicate, El Lobo, See-Tee-See, Paperboy, Monsoon, Autocrat and Please Me.

The Gold Cup, sixth race on the day's program, with posttime set for 4:35 o'clock (PST), marks the high point of Hollywood's racing season.

A field of eight fancy 3-year-olds goes after first prize of $72,500 in the $94,800 Arlington Classic, with the prospects that the long-striding Fervent, owned by Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, will go to the post the odds-on favorite.

Fervent will carry the hopes of the Midwest in the intersectional affair which has drawn three Eastern stars and four from California. The King's Ranch sensational filly, But Why Not, and William Helis' Cosmic Bomb and Miss Kimo represent the East.

From the Pacific Coast have come On Trust, the entry of the W. L. Ranch; Mrs. Rea Warner's Stepfather and Captain Flagg and the filly Hemet Squaw, one of three members of her sex to compete in the mile and a quarter race.

Fleet Mare Victor by 2½ Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., July 25.—Annie's Dream, the short-sprint queen of the minor tracks, won her fourth straight and her sixth in her last eight, by taking the featured Fountain Green Purse here today.

The fleet mare, owned by H. N. Warren of Alexandria, Va., coasted in to the wire 2½ lengths in front of A. J. Poinsett's Cabin Creek and another two lengths in advance of L. W. Jennings' Fenty O.

The crowd of 6500 listened to several paddock tips, but finally put the chief money in the right place—on Annie's nose.

After she did the job, there was a $4 win prize hung up. Jockey Jimmy Baird, leading rider at Charles Town and as familiar on Annie's Dream as her name, sent her the 5 furlongs in 0:58 3/5 over a lightning-fast track.

No Rival Could Catch Her

As is customary, Annie's Dream shot out of the gate as if she was given a flying start. From that point on it was a case of trying to catch her and, as aforementioned, no horse could.

Cabin Creek made a determined bid to get to the front leaving the backstretch, but Baird clucked to Annie and she had the answer in a burst of speed that left Cabin Creek up the creek, if you know what I mean. Fenty O was off sluggishly and closed some ground.

Jockey Sammy Palumbo, leading the riders here, took the Conowingo Purse with the Shangrila Stable's Green Garden.

Mrs. H. B. Donovan's Royal Favor, the favorite, was second, with V. S. McClintock's Lady Ligonier third in the field of seven going 6½ furlongs. The winner paid $9.40 and was clocked in 1.21 1/5.

Spain's Armada Triumphs

The Cardiff Steeplechase went to E. L. Rankin's Spain's Armada, much to the delight of the bettors who made the 4-year-old son of Battleship an even-money favorite. Jockey F. D. Adams rode the gelding confidently to get him home in front of S. R. Fry's Valdina Scamp and John Bosley, jr.'s, Fieldfare.

This winner, saddled by Miss Judy Johnson, Washington trainer, was clocked in 3:44 3/5 for the short jumping course of about 2 miles.

The daily double paid a healthy $241.20, the shortest possible payoff after Winston B. Hill's Gay Rocket won the first race at $56.40. The second event went to James Gross' Alpine Boy, a $5.60 choice.

STAND BY THE CHARTER, SAYS EGYPT TO BRITAIN

The United Nations Charter lays down the fundamental principle of "the sovereign equality" of all its members.

To Egypt the Charter is not mere ink on paper. It is a great living instrument. It charts our course. It dominates the whole field of international relations. It offers hope to small countries as well as large. It holds out the prospect of peace and security to all peoples.

A victim of nineteenth-century Imperialism for the past sixty-five years, Egypt sees in the Charter a solemn confirmation by the organized world of the aspirations which the Egyptian people have never ceased to cherish.

HOW THE VALLEY OF THE NILE COMPARES TO THE UNITED STATES

Here, superimposed upon a map of the United States, is a map, drawn to the same scale, of Egypt and the Sudan. It gives at a glance the mighty sweep of the domain that Britain threatens in her Sudan policy. The Sudan alone is 20 times as large as New York State; nearly four times as large as Texas and some 26 times the size of Ohio.

The Dispute Before the Security Council

Soon after the Charter entered into force, Egypt began negotiations with the British for the settlement of the long-standing dispute between the two Governments.

A whole year was devoted to these negotiations—and the result was nil.

What then could Egypt do? As a law-abiding country, she did not take matters into her own hands. She did not act precipitately.

Faithful to the provisions of the Charter, Egypt moved to bring the dispute to the Security Council.

Egypt's case is based upon the conception of the Unity of the Valley of the Nile. That Unity is created by diverse considerations: geographical, historical, ethnological, cultural, economic, and political.

Nile Unity in Geography

A cursory glance at the map will show that Egypt and the Sudan are one. Both exist on the bounty of a single life-giving blood-stream—the Nile!

The Nile compares with the Mississippi and the Amazon as one of the great rivers of the world. Five-sixths of the Nile are in the territory of Egypt and the Sudan. It flows over a distance of 4100 miles. It runs for 1000 miles before reaching the Sudan. Then for 2100 miles it traverses the Sudan. Finally, it crosses 940 miles of Egypt proper to find its haven in the Mediterranean.

The immense basin of the Nile—the Sudan alone, with an area of 1,000,000 square miles, is larger than the whole of the United States east of the Mississippi—is but a single unit. Each of its two great parts—Egypt and the Sudan—is indissolubly bound with the other.

Egypt cannot exist without the Sudan. The Sudan cannot exist without Egypt.

Nile Unity in History

The monuments of Egypt have resisted the ravages of time for more than 5000 years to give clear evidence of the close union between Egypt and the Sudan in former times.

Even in the days of the Pharaohs, the heart of Africa was explored and Egyptian authority was extended over the entire southern part of the Nile Valley. Recent archaeological discoveries confirm that Egyptian civilization and culture and religion flourished in the southern part of the Sudan.

Neither in the Ptolemaic nor in the Roman era was this Unity interrupted. When the Arabs came to Egypt they continued to control the Sudan, and a treaty of 651 A.D. remained in force for 600 years. A great migration into the Sudan followed, the Arabs intermarrying with the indigenous population. In the sixteenth century, the Turks took possession of Egypt and the Sudan.

In the nineteenth century, Mohammed Aly the Great, founder of Egypt's reigning dynasty, established his rule throughout the Sudan. Until 1882, there was no dispute of the Khedive's authority.

Nile Unity in Culture

From Egypt, successive waves of migrants have penetrated the reaches of the Sudan. No color bar has stood in the way of the integration of the two peoples.

Not only has Egyptian culture spread into the Sudan. Arabic is the common language of both Egyptians and Sudanese. It is the only language which can serve as the lingua franca of the Nile Valley.

Nile Unity in Economic Interests

The economy of both Egypt and the Sudan is largely based on agriculture. The industrialization which has come about in Egypt finds no counterpart in the Sudan. On the whole, the economy of each region complements that of the other.

Both parts of the Nile Valley depend upon the planned use of Nile waters, and on the storage of water during the flood season. The extension of arable areas requires the further reclamation of the desert in the interests of both. A perennial system of irrigation in Egypt intensifies the necessity for construction projects to regulate the flow of the Nile. Some such projects exist today, others must be envisaged for the future. Many of them are, and more will be, in the Sudan. New dams and new reservoirs will be as beneficial to the Sudan as to other parts of Egypt. The salvage of Nile water is the common interest of all the peoples of the Nile Valley.

More than this! Egypt lives at sufferance on the Upper Nile. In the words of Sir Scott Moncrieff, a former Under Secretary of the Egyptian Ministry of Public Works, a hostile power on the Upper Nile, could "at will either parch or inundate Egypt." Writing on the same subject, Sir Reginald Portall said that "He who holds the Upper Nile, could dispose of Egypt as he likes and even destroy her."

Far from being a slogan for propaganda purposes, the Unity of the Nile is nature's own behest.

Challenge to Nile Unity

Today this natural and historical Unity of Egypt and the Sudan is seriously challenged. The challenge comes from Britain. It is not only an attempt to break the bonds which unite Egypt and the Sudan. It is also a threat to the territorial integrity of the Sudan itself.

How did Britain come by a place in this picture?

The long and sordid story can be understood only if one can lift himself out of current live-and-let-live ideas, and resurrect the devious assumptions of nineteenth-century Imperialism.

In the '70s and '80s of the last century, under the reign of Khedive Ismail, Egypt's finances reached a low ebb. In these times the amount of the debt would cause little concern. In that day, however, the moral outlook did not condemn the use of force to collect an international debt. And that is what happened.

First came interference in Egypt's internal affairs by the British and the French. Theirs was the high mission of protecting the foreign bondholders.

Later, on various pretexts, the British bombarded Alexandria in 1882. They followed through by occupying the whole of Egypt.

Of course responsible British statesmen disavowed any intention to hold Egypt permanently. They declared time and time again that the occupation was but "temporary."

Sixty-five long years have passed—and the "temporary" presence of British forces still continues.

Soon after the occupation began, the British compelled the Egyptians to withdraw their troops and officials from the Sudan, and to cease all opposition to the forces of the Mahdi who had begun a local rebellion. Then after a few years the British moved to realize their preconceived designs. In 1896, Kitchener led a large Egyptian army, assisted by a small force of British occupation troops, to put down the Mahdi revolt. When the rebels were decisively defeated at Khartoum on September 2, 1898, Kitchener raised both the Egyptian and British flags. At the same time, he appealed to the Sudanese to respect the authority of the Khedive as the legitimate Sovereign of the Sudan.

Then came the famous "Fashoda incident." When a French flag was hoisted at Fashoda, Kitchener protested that the Sudan was Egyptian territory. The French commander, Major Marchand, refused to give in if the British flag were flown, but he consented to withdraw when faced by the Egyptian flag alone. Confronted by a rival European Power, Britain backed Egyptian sovereignty to the hilt.

At this time no shadow was cast on Egyptian sovereignty.

Then Came the Pay-Off

When control of the Sudan was reestablished, the British sought a reward. After all, the Sudan was on the way to other regions; Africa was in the throes of dismemberment by land-hungry European states; and British gaze had turned even farther South.

Taking advantage of the facts that a few British troops had been employed in the expedition which vanquished the Mahdists, and that Britain had put up about one-third of the cost of the campaign, the British put forward a "right of conquest"—no less!—to justify their "sharing" in the future administration of the Sudan.

Being in occupation of Egypt, the British pushed the Egyptians into the Agreement of January 18, 1899, which provided for a joint Egyptian-British Administration of the Sudan. Later, to give an impression of sharing with Egypt the sovereignty of the Sudan, they christened this Administration a condominium. Yet neither that term, nor the term sovereignty, is to be found in the text of 1899.

Truth is, the Agreement of 1899 was merely a provisional practical measure. It was designed to lift the Sudan out of the extraterritorial regime then prevailing in Egypt—out of the Capitulations—so as to keep British hands free. On this ground Lord Cromer defended it, describing the new Administration as a "hybrid" form of government.

Thus for practical purposes the Sudan was severed from the Central Government in Egypt for the first time in recorded history.

An Administration Out of Joint

The Sudan Administration was to be under the fifty-fifty control of Egypt and Britain. All civil and military powers were to be vested in the Governor General, and he was to be appointed by the Khedive of Egypt on the nomination of the British Government. To date, every Governor General has been a Britisher.

In the beginning, Egyptians played some part in the Administration, and some Egyptian forces were stationed in the Sudan. Yet it soon became clear that the British were attempting to oust all Egyptian influence. Gradually for a time, yet progressively, the Egyptians were squeezed out. They were purged because they were Egyptians.

Then in 1924 came the assassination in Cairo of Sir Lee Stack, who was both Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar (Commander in Chief) of the Egyptian Army. The crime was the work of an irresponsible individual, and the Egyptian Government was in no way implicated. It was the kind of violent incident which sometimes occurs even in European and American countries. In Egypt, however, the British saw it as an opportunity to push one more lap along the road of Imperial grandeur!

Official apology and expression of regret came promptly from the Egyptian Government, and efficient efforts were made to apprehend and punish the culprit. Yet that was not enough. Such a chance could not be allowed to slip.

The British demanded an indemnity of £500,000, the withdrawal within twenty-four hours of the few Egyptian forces still in the Sudan, and other concessions totally unrelated to the event. Egypt agreed to pay the indemnity, but balked at the withdrawal. In the end, when the Egyptian forces in the Sudan were surrounded, they were brought back to Egypt to avoid a clash.

A new force was then recruited by the British in the Sudan, and its officers were compelled to swear allegiance to the Governor General who appointed them.

Despite these facts, for some years Egypt continued her annual grants of funds for the defense of the Sudan—at one time as much as £750,000 a year.

Since 1924, Egyptian participation in the Sudan Administration has been even less than nominal. It has been all but non-existent.

Thus fared the "joint" Administration! Thus have the Egyptians been forced to view from the sidelines the entrenchment of an alien government in a part of their national territory!

How Fare the Sudanese?

As a consequence of British domination, the social and cultural advancement of the population of the Sudan has been greatly retarded. No attempt has been made to train the Sundanese for more than menial tasks, and when Sudanese come to Egypt to be educated—as many of them do—they can hope for no posts in the government service on their return to the Sudan. The economic interests of the Sudanese have been similarly disregarded, to supply "cheap cotton for Lancashire."

Of course the British hold out the bait of independence to the Sudan—that is, ultimate independence. How ultimate is for the British to decide! And as elsewhere in their far-flung Empire, the people are never "ready" for independence.

Yet the British do not fail to keep an anchor to windward. Foreseeing that they may be unable to stave off the reunion of the Northern Sudan with Egypt, they seek to mark out the Southern Sudan as a territory apart. It would fit in so well with British territories beyond!

Hence every effort is being made to divide the Sudanese. Minorities are favored and encouraged. Separatism, as a part of the British strategy, supplies ever fresh excuses for the British to dig themselves in.

Past Negotiations Futile

How often in the past thirty years have the Egyptian people been buoyed by a hope of a settlement with the British! Yet the continuous efforts of the Egyptian Government have brought no fulfillment of their hopes. In each of the many series of negotiations, the British have given appearances of conciliation, only to end exactly where they began, with no modification of their initial demands.

In the recent negotiations, the British finally brought themselves to a formal admission of Egyptian sovereignty over the Sudan, and its Unity with Egypt under the Egyptian Crown. It soon appeared, however, that they meant only a token sovereignty, only a "symbolic" unity. Even then a string was tied to the admission. For attached was a reservation that the Sudanese should have a right to secede from Egypt at some future date, such date to be set by the British after a plebiscite to be conducted under British bayonets.

THE STAKES IN THE DISPUTE

In the dispute now before the Security Council, the stakes of the parties are by no means equal.

Britain seeks to keep her hold on the Sudan as an incident of her Imperial sway, as a way-station for her Imperial communications, as a cotton-field to supply her mills at home. She talks of her concern for the welfare of the Sudanese—she acts to tighten her grip on the Valley of the Nile. Thus would she maintain herself as the over-lord of Egyptian independence.

Egypt seeks to reestablish her governance in this indisputably Egyptian territory, to extend the King's peace throughout her own country and among her own people. With all the affinities woven by a common history, by a common tongue, and by a common culture, she would admit the Sudanese to share the aspirations and progress of their fellow-Egyptians.

For Britain, the fruits of past Imperialistic aggrandizement may be lost. For Egypt and the Sudan, independence is in jeopardy, and the capacity to play the role of an equal in the twentieth-century world.

Egypt is asking for real freedom. She does not want Britain—or any foreign Power—to dominate her destiny. Egypt believes that only a world of free peoples can be a peaceful world of United Nations.

Egypt staunchly stands on the Charter!

Conferees Eliminate 18,000 War Dept. Jobs

About 18,000 civilian jobs in the War Department were wiped out by the Senate-House conference report on its budget. A preliminary estimate indicates that between 1500 and 2000 of the positions are in this city. This is the picture:

In passing the War Department appropriation bill, the House ordered elimination of about 76,000 jobs. The Senate, however, put back funds in the budget for about 58,000 of the positions. The conferees agreed to split the difference and to allow money for about 18,000 jobs over what had been originally approved by the House.

Under the House bill, at least 3500 of the jobs to be abolished were at headquarters of the department here. The Senate restored funds for all of these jobs. The conference compromise is expected to allow the department to retain about half of the 3500 jobs in doubt.

But in addition to the 16,000 employes at headquarters, the department has field offices in and nearby this city with upward of 12,000 employes. It appears that reductions also must be made in this force under the compromise.

Several thousands of the employes here and elsewhere "were given" 30-day provisional dismissal notices after the House vote. After the Senate acted, the notices to a good many employes were canceled. The conference compromise will compel the department to make another readjustment of its civilian staff.

MARITIME: This agency faces a major overhauling and another sharp reduction in its personnel. Its officials were debating late yesterday on the steps to take. This is the complicated Maritime picture:

The agency gave provisional lay-off notices to about 1100 of its administrative people, of whom 600 were in this city, after the House cut its budget sharply. The conference report gave the agency only enough new money to recall 150 of these 1100 laid-off people. About 50 of those to be called back to their jobs are in this city.

But now the agency faces another major lay-off of about 1100 employes in its war shipping operations. Maritime had used income from its shipping operations to pay its WSA employes. At the last minute, however, the Congress ordered the agency to justify a direct appropriation for the WSA activities.

Maritime asked for $6,750,000 to cover the salaries of 1650 employes until March 1, when it plans to reduce its staff to 1000 for the remainder of the fiscal year.

But the House yesterday cut the amount requested to $4,250,000 which officials say would allow for an average staff of 530 for the remainder of the year. The cost of a reasonable notice to the employes and terminal leave costs, plus the fact that WSA operations have been continuing for nearly a month with a full 1650-man staff all serve to make the reduction in force much greater than would have been necessary had the agency known on July 1 how much money it was to be given.

FPHA: This agency, too is in the thick of a major reorganization that will bring firings and downgradings to at least half of its employes.

Dillon S. Myer, the commissioner of Federal Public Housing, yesterday announced that 1100 employes would be laid off to get his staff down to 1900, which is less than half of the average payroll of 4000 the agency had during the 1947 fiscal year.

The central office here will be cut from 1100 to 550. In addition, the FPHA field office here that handles Greenbelt and other nearby projects will be closed and its duties will be transferred to the New York regional office.

The FPHA appropriation bill also limits to 20 per cent the number of employes who can be paid more than $4500 a year. This rider will force the downgradings of several hundred of the employes who will be retained.

FDIC: The Senate sent the corporation appropriation bill back to conference yesterday. Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) led the fight on a provision which would have required the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. to come under the budget control of the Budget Bureau. Vandenberg said the proposal was "fabulous nonsense."

LOYALTY: Civil Service yesterday appealed to the Senate Appropriations Committee for additional funds to carry out the President's Federal worker loyalty plan.

The House voted the commission $3,500,000 of the $16,180,000 requested by the President. Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming urged the Senate to raise the amount to $11,200,000. He said the commission could not make an inquiry of new employes unless the money was made available.

Police Board Fires 1, Fines 1 in Assault

Stewart, Garrett Punished for Using 'Needless' Violence On G. U. Student

A Police Trial Board yesterday recommended that one policeman be dismissed and another fined $350 on charges involving the maltreatment of Georgetown student Daniel J. Fitzpatrick, 22, on June 4.

One of the three board members, Capt. Walter T. Storm, dissented from the recommendation, urging that Pvt. James A. Stewart, jr., be fined $400 in lieu of dismissal.

The board found Pvt. Warren L. Garrett, Stewart's companion at the time of the Fitzpatrick incident, guilty of three charges and recommended a fine of $350.

Three of the four charges made against Stewart were upheld by the board:

That he maltreated and used unnecessary violence on Fitzpatrick, striking him with his fist and a blackjack or other blunt instrument; conduct unbecoming an officer in threatening John H. Moore, employe of the Little Tavern at 3331 M st. nw., the same morning, and driving the employe from the restaurant; being willfully and knowingly untruthful in telling Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly that he went home and went to bed shortly after midnight that morning.

Stewart Garrett

Stewart was found not guilty of neglecting to make a report of Fitzpatrick's injuries and his hospitalization.

Garrett was judged guilty of three charges: Neglect of duty in allowing Stewart's actions without reporting them; conduct unbecoming an officer in the threatening of the restaurant employe, and untruthfulness to a superior officer in the account he gave of his actions early that morning. The fines recommended were $150 on the first charge, $50 on the second and $150 on the third.

The board's recommendations will be sent to Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and to the District Commissioners for approval.

The charges were prosecuted by Assistand District Corporation Counsel John J. Donnelly, jr., in a three-day hearing, which ended Thursday.

Charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct against Fitzpatrick in the June 4 fracas were dismissed in Municipal Court. Officer Stewart had first encountered Fitzpatrick a few days previously, when he had booked him on similar charges. Fitzpatrick was fined $5 on the disorderly conduct charge on that occasion.

Why Is Friede Still on Rolls? Congress Asks

A House District subcommittee yesterday said it wanted a written explanation from District Commissioners of why Former Fire Alarm Superintendent Herbert A. Friede is still on the city's payroll.

It said so in a report to the House District Committee, following, a review of Justice Department documents linking Friede with the Gamewell Co., manufacturers of fire alarm equipment.

Now Under Indictment

The Gamewell Co. is now under indictment in Boston charged with monopolistic practices leading to high and unreasonable prices for fire alarm boxes.

Friede appeared to have a "close personal association" with the company, the report said, and many specifications for District fire alarm boxes apparently were "taken from the catalogue of the Gamewell Corp."

Promises Early Reply

"To continue Mr. Friede in the employ of the District of Columbia under such a cloud of suspicion," the report added, "is beyond the comprehension of this committee."

No evidence was found to warrant prosecution of Friede, the subcommittee said, but this does not mean it "approves of his conduct."

March Deadline

High-Income Eviction Plan Is Approved

The House yesterday adopted a conference report giving high-income tenants of low-rent Federal housing project until March 1, 1948, to find other living quarters.

The period of grace, a provision of a bill amending the Housing Act of 1937, is a qualified one, however. High-income families can be evicted from the low-rent projects if in the opinion of the project administrator other housing facilities are available.

The bill, expected to become law within a few days, directly affects 567 of the 3500 families living in low-rent projects operated by the National Capital Housing Authority.

Incomes Over

8he 567 tennants have family incomes of $3000 or more, according to John Ihlder, NCHA administrator, and already have been notified they "must" seek new accommodations within the next six months.

"These high-income tenants have been told that if it is found they have not made a serious effort to obtain other housing facilities during the six months period that they certainly will be evicted," Ihlder said.

"As to those who make a serious effort, but fail to find other housing, we will see what is to be done about them at the end of the six months."

Fits NCHA Program

Ihlder pointed out that the proposed March 1 period of grace fitted in with NCHA's own program of giving the tenants six months to look around. He added that admittedly there is not sufficient housing available here now, but that things could change in the next half year.

The House also approved a bill to exempt District educational institutions from provisions of the local rent control law so as to permit the schools to evict tenants from school-owned properties and make the housing available for school purposes.

The Senate already has approved the bill, and it now goes to the White House.

Immediate effect of the bill will be felt in housing owned by George Washington University, which wants to make some of its residential property available for veteran-amputee students.

Senator's Aide Paid $2500 By Taximen

Hawkes' Secretary Admits Lobbying for Cab Limitation Bill

Washington cab operators paid $2500 to a Senator's former secretary to push a District taxicab limitation bil lthrough Congress, it was learned yesterday.

Disclosure of this move came after Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) blocked Senate action on the limitation bill Thursdey. The bill would have placed the limitation authority in the hands of the District Public Utilities Commission.

The former Capitol secretary was Albert W. Lewitt who said he resigned last April from his job as secretary to Senator Albert W. Hawkes (R., N. J.).

Letter Tells of Assignment

His assignment on the cab bill was disclosed in a letter made public by Senator Johnston.

The letter was dated June 10, 1947, signed by John H. Royer, jr., as president of Combined Cab Services, Inc., and addressed to the board of directors of the Independent Taxi Owners Association.

It said Combined Cab Services had agreed to pay $2500 to "a public relations man in whom we have great confidence" to work for passage of the limitation bill. The letter said he was to receive an additional $17,500 when the bill became law. The letter identified the public relations man as 'C. W. Lewitt."

Lewitt Admits Main Point

Lewitt, after hearing the letter read over the telephone, said the first initial in the quoted name was a mistake. He said he was the one who had been hired, and that he had received the $2500 payment. He said his services ended with the end of this session of Congress.

He said the letter was incorrect in that he had not been informed of any arrangement to pay him an additional fee if the bill passed.

He said the letter was also incorrect in referring to him as Washington representative of McGraw Hill Publications. He said after leaving the Senator's office April 1, he had done a two-week survey for McGraw Hill, but that was all.

Lewitt said the bill was not intended to freeze the number of taxicabs here, but simoly to let the Public Utilities Commission decide what number was needed.

Lewitt lives at the Continental Hotel.

Chest X-Rays Begin Here Early in '48

'Sales Campaign' For Tuberculosis Survey Scheduled During Rest of '47

Actual mass chest X-rays for tuberculosis will get under way in the District "shortly after the beginning of next year."

This was the prediction of District Health Officer Dr. George C. Ruhland yesterday following a special meeting in his office at which organization plans for Washington's forthcoming TB survey were discussed.

The remainder of 1947, he said, will be devoted to "educational preparation" for the tuberculosis case-finding survey in an all-out effort to secure public understanding and cooperation in the project.

Congress Puts Up $66,000

"Every possible organization in Washington," he stated, "will be asked to lend its suport." To that end, a prominent citizen is soon to be selected to head a general citizens commitee which will coordinate the chest survey's "educational and sales campaign."

The survey to ferret out unknown and unsuspected cases of the dread disease by voluntary X-ray of every person over 15 years of age was assured with congressional appropriation of $66,000 to help finance the project.

The United States Public Health Service is also contributing $88,000 and the District Tuberculosis Association is putting up $33,000.

Still in Planning Phase

Dr. Ruhland said he expected the TB educational program would gain momemtum as the summer passed. He pointed out that many people are absent from the city at this time. "Our present activities are still in the planning stage—paper work," he said.

Present at the meeting, besides Dr. Ruhland, were Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, director of the District Health Department's chest clinic; Edgar K. Funkhouser, executive secretary of the District Tuberculois Association; and Dr. Francis J. Weber, director of the tuberculosis control division of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Services Reveal Training Center In Atomic Arms

The Army and Navy announced Thursday that they had been engaged for a year in training their forces in the development and use of atomic weapons.

They said a training camp, jointly operated, was located at Sandia, N. Mex., and announced its director was Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, under whose supervision the atomic bomb was developed. Rear Admiral William S. Parsons, also connected with development of the bomb, is deputy director.

Groves, Parsons and others connected with the development were scheduled to meet behind closed doors today with members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy to explain what they are now doing.

Yesterday's announcement said Joint Task Force No. 1, which carried out the atomic bomb tests last year at Bikini, had been turned over to the project at Sandia.

Alcoholic Clinic, Gun Bills Near Passage

Budget Officer Sees District Needing Sales Tax by 1949

A new demand for a sales tax here in 1949 was voiced yesterday after President Truman signed the record-breaking $95,504,737 District appropriation bill for fiscal 1948.

District Budget Officer Walter Fowler said a sales tax would be the "best possible method" of raising more money for the District in 1949. Additional tax legislation "will undoubtedly be necessary" next year, he declared, unless the recently-passed District tax law brings in more money than predicted.

Many projects, deleted from the 1948 budget to make way for $4,269,000 worth of school capital improvements, will probably be requested in 1949, he said. They include an Industrial Home School, Home for the Aged, an apartment house for medical officers at Glenn Dale Sanatorium, and additional buildings at Gallinger Hospital. Approximately five million dollars more for school also will be asked next year, Fowler estimated.

"Under no circumstances," he asserted, "could residents here stand any further increase in real estate taxes."

Hebert Measures Due for Approval By Congress Today

Congress is slated today to give final approval to the District's anti-gun-toting and alcoholic clinic bills.

Both were introduced early in the session by Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.). They were parts of a broad program to improve Washington's law enforcement setup drafted as one outgrowth of last year's jail breaks here.

Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) last night won Senate clearance for a conference report on the gun-toting bill. Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) recorded his vote against it. The conference report must still clear the House.

In its final form, the bill follows the plan approved earlier by the House. It leaves the offense of carrying concealed weapons without a permit as a misdemeanor, but given police authority to search individuals for weapons on probable cause, without the warrant they now need. A compromise section, not in the early House plan, says that if police find a weapon, they can continue searching an individual for other evidences of crime.

If no weapon is found, however, the police would not be allowed to prosecute the individual on evidence of other crimes turned up in the search for a weapon.

Cooper wanted to make the offense a felony and increase penalties. He contended that searching without a warrant in misdemeanors was a threat to civil liberties. He said it might open the way for searches in such petty offenses as traffic violations.

The alcoholic clinic plan was cleared by a joint conference committee. Representative John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.) announced the conference group had voted to accept the Senate version.

Its major difference from the House-approved plan was in financing. The House voted to authorize up to $100,000 a year for the clinic out of general District funds. The Senate decided to pay for the clinic with a 10 per cent boost in liquor license fees. Officials estimated the increase would produce about $75,000 a year for the clinic. Allen said the two Houses will be asked to give final clearance for the clinic bill today.

The conference also agreed on a bill to set up a five-member District board to license and regulate Washington undertakers and embalmers. Senate and House versions differed in technical details, Allen said this bill, too, is slated for final action today.

Meanwhile the Senate passed and returned to the House a supplemental appropriation bill containing $370,000 to plan the new Federal Courts building for Washington. The new building, to house the District and Appeals courts, would be built in the block bounded by Constitution ave., John Marshall pl., 3d and C sts. nw.

Both the court building fund and $181,000 to boost Howard University teachers5 salaries to match the recent boost in District school pay, have been approved by both Houses. The Senate, however, made other changes in the bill that sent it to conference. The changes included a $25,000 fund for planning a new Senate Office Building and $84,000 for remodeling the Senate restaurant.

The House yesterday approved authorization to construct a $22,850,000 General Accounting office building at G and 5th sts. nw. The block was bought by the Government before the war, the buildings razed and the foundation dug, but the war halted construction. The bill permits building of a larger structure than originally contemplated. Some five million dollars is immediately available for the project.

Hearings End On Home Rule For District

A congressional subcommittee studying home rule and reorganization of the District yesterday concluded its hearings after holding more than 25 public sessions.

During the summer recess, the subcommittee and its technical staff will work out a series of recommendations for a new organic act of government for the District, to supersede the present law established in 1878.

Spokesmen for the people's counsel, Public Utilities Commission, recorder of deeds and superintendent of insurance appeared before the subcommittee yesterday to urge that their agencies continue present methods of operation in any reorganization of the municipal government.

However, Edward E. Bailey, jr., superintendent of licenses, pointed out there are now 14 commissions and boards issuing licenses and permits. It would correct a "confusing situation," he said, if all the licenses were applied for and issued through one central agency.

Marshall L. Shepard, recorder of deeds, whose office is independent of the District Commissioners, declared in a prepared statement that neither efficiency nor savings would be gained by placing his agency under control of the local government.

"I feel that ours is now the only office in the District where fair employment practices are actually carried out," Shepard said.

A statement read for John O'Dea, people's counsel, declared: "The fact that there is a people's counsel, without any other consideration, tends of istelf to act as a check on the action of the Public Utilities Commsision."

O'Dea's statement was read by James H. Flanagan, PUC chairman. For his own agency, Flanagan said: "The importance of the commission's functions demands its complete independence from all other agencies of the District government."

Pepco Refuses To Place Lines Underground

Montgomery County officials yesterday were given a flat refusal by the Potomac Electric Power Co. to a proposal that overhead power lines along Georgia ave. be moved underground.

A movement by Silver Spring civic business groups as well as fire department officials has been underway for some time to bring about the removal of overhead lines.

Oliver W. Youngblood, county commissioner for the Silver Spring area, said the plan is currently being pushed to coincide with rebuilding of Georgia ave. into a six-lane boulevard and completion of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad underpass.

States Company's Views

At a conference of utility, county, civic and business leaders yesterday in the Silver Spring County Building, President A. G. Neal of Pepco stated the company's stand.

It would be unfair to render the service to one community and not the others, he said, citing as well scarcity of materials.

The proposal would place all Pepco lines underground from the District line along Georgia ave. to Cameron st. and on the Colesville pike from Georgia ave. to Fenton st.

Cost Set at $300,000

Neal said the entire project would cost about $300,000 and increased operation costs would have to be passed on to the consumer.

Only about 25 per cent of the District's power lines are underground, he said.

The telephone company is little affected, according to Charles N. Graham, local manager of the Baltimore C. & P. Co. Graham said the telephone lines are already "100 per cent underground in the area designated."

Alexandria Buys 1 of 3 School Sites

The purchase of one of three school sites needed by the City of Alexandria for its school expansion program was announced yesterday.

City Councilman R. Samuel Luckett, chairman of the school site committee, said the city bought four blocks in southwest Alexandria for a white elementary school. Two other lots were also purchased to make the area contiguous with previously owned city property.

The area for the school is bounded by S. Patrick, Jefferson, S. Fayette, and Church sts. Luckett said this site is slightly east and south of the one originally recommended to the council because (1) owners of the other would not sell at the city's offer and (2) the site purchased being on higher ground will have better drainage.

Leonard Knight, school board member, said the school will be a 32-classroom building. It will replace the Washington and Lee Schools and serve all the southern part of the old city.

Knight added, however, that this school has the lowest priority of any now planned. First in importance, he said, is a white elementary school in northeast Alexandria. Next comes a new Negro high school. The city is now arranging for sites for both.

Knight also said that an elementary school for Parkfairfax is high on the list. He said that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. has offered the site and $50,000 toward construction of a school there.

Attempt to Influence Grand Jury Is Charged

Baltimore, July 25 (AP).—The grand jury today presented Harry F. Klinefelter, Baltimore insurance agent, on charges of attempting to "influence, intimidate and impede" the grand jury and its foreman in the discharge of their duty.

Bail was set at $500.

Although the presentment declared the offense occurred "on or about June 12," it did not elaborate on the charges.

The charge read:

"The jurors of the State of Maryland for the body of the City of Baltimore, do on their oath present Harry F. Klinefelter, charged with corruptly by threats, endeavoring to influence, intimidate and impede W. Robey Purnell, jr., foreman, and other members of the May term 1947 grand jury in and for the City of Baltimore and State of Maryland in the discharge of their duty and obstruct and impede the due administration of justice in said city and State on or about June 12, 1946."

State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells, who appeared before the jury as a witness, declined to discuss the presentment.

Klinefelter earlier had written the grand jury and Wells claiming irregularities in a contribution list filed by Edward A. Garmatz as campaign treasurer in the election of Thomas D'Alesandro as Mayor.

Wells subsequently reported he found no willful infractions of the Corrupt Practices Act in connection with the list.

Apple Crop Is Short

Winchester, Va., July 25.—The local crop of Williams Early Red apples is the shortest in the experience of E. W. Barr, local orchardist and apple shipper. Orchardists who generally harvested hundreds of bushels this year haven't enough "for an apple pie," he said.

The Williams Early Red appeared the hardest hit by frosts this spring among the early varieties. Barr has shipped 7000 bushels of early apples to date and has three more cars to go this week. Duchess are almost cleaned up, but some Wealthies and McIntosh should be ready next week, he said.

Few Use Scholarships

Richmond, Va., July 25 (AP).—The State Department of Education reported today that Virginia's teacher scholarship program—authorized under $330,000 appropriation at this year's special session of the General Assembly—has drawn comparatively few applicants.

The fund was set up at the request of Governor Tuck in an effort to bring additional qualified teachers into Virginia schools. Under the plan a beneficiary could "write off" the entire amount of the scholarship by teaching a stipulated time in State schools.

While 300 scholarships of not more than $100 were provided for summer school study, there were only 121 applicants for these, the department said.

Famed Potts Home Sold

Richmond, Va., July 25 (AP).—The State Highway Department today awarded a contract to Mrs. Virginia B. Haughwout of Williamsburg calling for the removal of the old Potts House at Providence Forge.

Mrs. Haughwout submitted a high bid of $2600 for the Eighteenth Century house. She is required to move the building by September 20 so that construction of the improved Route 60 will not be delayed at this point.

The purchaser said she had not decided on an exact site but that it would be rebuilt in Williamsburg.

Dog Is Fire Hero

Baltimore, July 25 (AP).—The barking of a 6-month-old collie pup early today aroused 11 persons who made their way safely from a burning three-story building.

Mrs. Clyde Peterson said the dog's commotion woke her at 4:30 a. m. She found the hallway filled with smoke, roused other occupants of the building and turned in an alarm. Firemen carried a baby down a ladder.

Recreation Board Again Seeks Pools

The Recreation Board yesterday renewed its efforts to take over six public pools now operated by Government Services, Inc.

Milo C. Christiansen, recreation superintendent, was authorized to negotiate with the Department of the Interior with a view to having the Recreation Department operate the pools next season.

Authorization came at a board meeting after Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks and a member of the board, said Interior is willing to release the pools to the Recreation Department.

Harry Wender, board chairman, said Frank W. Hoover, director of GSI, promised GSI will not hold Interior to a five-year contract it signed last year for operation of the pools.

For more than a year recreation officials have been seeking to control the swimming facilities, declaring they could render better service than GSI.

The pools are at the McKinley-Eckington, East Potomac Park, Takoma, Francis, Banneker and Anacostia recreation centers.

In other actions yesterday the Recreation Board:

Asked the National Capital Park and Plannnig Commission to invite the Board of Education to be present at a joint meeting of the Recreation Board and planners Thursday at 2 p. m. The meeting is to discuss budget requests for recreation land. Presence of the Board of Education will help in efforts to coordinate the planning of educational and recreational facilities, Wender said.

Expressed concern that Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young's "Plan for Civic Improvements, 1947," which extends the period of civic improvements from 6 to 11 years, will delay the board's construction and development program.

GAA to Back Full Slate of Candidates

A full, "nonpartisan," slate of candidates for Arlington County and State posts will be indorsed by the Greater Arlington Association.

Executive Committee Chairman Charles O. Pratt made the announcement yesterday in the first full policy statement from the GAA since the group was formed this spring to fight an $11,125,000 county and school improvement bond issue.

Pratt said the group would wait until after the Democratic primary August 5 and the August 8 Republican convention before making indorsements.

Next Wednesday, however, the GAA executive committee will meet to consider throwing its support behind candidates for five posts on the school board, Pratt added.

GAA backing for any county or State position, Pratt emphasized, will be "nonpartisan." He said the group currently is organizing a number of branches in various Arlington neighborhoods.

Meantime, a group led by the Citizens Committee for School Improvement, which opposed GAA's stand last spring, continued plans to nominate its own candidates for the five school board posts.

Edmund D. Campbell and Oscar R. LeBeau, cochairmen of the "steering committee" to arrange the August 7 nominating convention, said more than 20 persons already have been recommended as candidates.

The convention will be held at 8:15 p. m. at the Ashton Heights Woman's Club House, 413 N. Irving st. Participating groups are the Arlington Civic Federation, the Citizens Committee, the Arlington Better Government League, the Arlington League of Women Voters and the Organized Women Voters.

Corn Ready for Market

Berryville, Va., July 25.—Sweet corn grown on Shenandoah River bottomland in Clarke County is about to go to market, according to John U. Miller, large truck crop producer, who reported that he has 30 acres that will start producing within the next few days.

Miller, who does not dispose of his large crop to commercial canners, markets his corn to housewives within a 50-mile radius, including Martinsburg, Winchester and Hagerstown. Last year he also trucked sweet corn to Washington and Pittsburgh.

But corn is only one of Mr. Miller's major crops. The second is watermelons and cantaloupes. Each year the local farmer holds a watermelon festival at his farm, attracting hundreds at the height of the melon harvest. The watermelons are already as "big as gallon crocks" and should be ripe by August 10, he said today.

Food Prices Rise 1.7 Pct. In Month Here

Retail food prices in Washington rose 1.7 per cent between May 15 and June 15 of this year, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, while in 56 other cities, the average increase was 1.5 per cent.

The retail index here climbed from 187.8 on May 15 to 190.9 on June 15, a rise of 31.2 per cent over June 15 of the previous year, and 103 per cent higher than the August, 1939, index.

Nationally, the retail food price index rose from 187.6 to 190.5 per cent of the 1935-39 index, the Bureau said. This was 31 per cent above mid-June, 1946, the last month of extensive Government price controls.

The sharp rise in the national family food bill was due mostly to an 8 per cent increase in the prices of red meats and a 2 per cent seasonal advance in eggs. These increases offset declines of 6 per cent for fats and oils, 2 per cent for coffee, and 1 per cent for fruits and vegetables.

The Bureau found in its survey that food prices had risen during the last month in 46 of the 56 cities surveyed. In nine cities, prices were down, and in Denver, Colo., they were unchanged.

Advances ranged from 0.5 per cent in Jackson Miss. to 4.4 per cent in Providence R. I. Declines varied from 0.1 per cent in Mobile, Ala., to 1.5 per cent in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Visitors Feted

Steelmans Are Hosts At Dinner

By Marie McNair

PRESIDENTIAL Assistant John Steelman and Mrs. Steelman entertained informally at dinner last evening and in the afternoon Miss Madeline Austin gave a cocktail party for two young visitors from Argentina. There was a luncheon yesterday, too, for those much-feted teen-agers, Martha Best Yorke of Concord, N. C., niece of Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, and Miss Anne Revercomb, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Chapman Revercomb.

William H. McReynolds, the late President Roosevelt's personal advisor, and Mrs. McReynolds, were in the small company of old friends at Mr. and Mrs. Steelman's dinner. Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kenney were there and also Mr. and Mrs. John Strait.

The little group, which gathered on the Washington Hotel roof for luncheon yesterday, was entertained by Miss Joyce Sentner, with Miss Yorke and Miss Revercomb as guests of honor. Others present were Mrs. Patricia Hatch, Miss Nancy McDonald and Miss Janice McLaughlin.

From South America

When Miss Austin and her mother, Mrs. Septimus Austin, were touring South America just before the war, they met Miss Ivy Maitland and Miss Amy Wilson, who lived in Argentina and became fast friends.

Mrs. Austin and her daughter were visiting at an estancia and would often drive over to the Maitlands' neighboring rancho to watch a polo game or admire the herds of blooded cattle.

Miss Maitland and Miss Wilson who are on their first trip to this country, will spend the weekend here before setting out on their travels.

Yesterday Miss Austin hastily gathered in some 50 of her friends for a late afternoon cocktail party to meet the visitors and this afternoon the Misses Eunice and Mary Hutchins will entertain at cocktails for them on the Shoreham terrace.

Among those dropping in at the Austin apartment at Wardman Park were Sir Alwyn and Lady Crow, Mme. Ivanissevich, wife of the Argentine Ambassador; the Military Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Mathenet, and the Minister-Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron.

TOWN TOPICS: Mrs. George Haven returned yesterday to New York after a visit with her old school friend, Mrs. Deborah Glassford. Mrs. Haven will be back, however, before long. One who can work magic with dull interiors, she has a commission to do over the house on Massachusetts ave. which Mr. and Mrs. Frazier Bailey, of New York, recently bought.

Mrs. Randall Hagner and her daughter, Belle, will be off for cool Cape May on August 1 for a month.

Elizabeth and Mary Howry are back from North Carolina, where they visited the Edward Haines. Seeing the new house at Tryon which the Haines are building, reminded Mary Howry she must get back to Washington and have the drawing room of her little Georgetown house done over. Later she'll make a series of visits, going to Hot Springs, Va., and Stone Ridge, N. Y.

Women's Party To Celebrate Suffrage Fight

The National Woman's Party will celebrate the 27th anniversary of the suffrage victory by holding its biennial convention in Chicago, August 26, a recent meeting of the national executive council decided. Miss Anita Pollitzer of New York City, national chairman, with other national officers issued the following statement in calling the conclave:

"Since the last time we met together in national convention, in October, 1942, much has been accomplished toward passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. For the first time, the President of the United States has declared for the amendment, which will insure to women equal rights and justice under the law.

"Both the Democratic and Republican parties have now indorsed the amendment in their national platforms, whereas previously only one had done so. The Judiciary Committees of both Houses of Congress in the Seventy-Ninth Congress gave their support for the amendment, whereas previously the Judiciary Committee of the Senate alone had favorably reported the amendment. Governors of 31 States have indorsed the amendment. The chairmen of both major political parties have for the first time spoken in its behalf. The Equal Rights Amendment was voted on in the United States Senate for the first time in our history on July 19, 1946, and received a majority vote.

"As our 1945 convention was a convention-by-mail, as was the case with many other national organizations, because of the rulings of the Office of Defense Transportation, this will be our first opportunity since before the difficult war years to join hands and unite our strength in a demand for the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment by this Congress."

Officers for the 1947 Convention of the National Woman's Party are: Dr. Agnes E. Wells, Saginaw, Mich., honorary convention chairman; Mrs. Charles Robbins, Chicago, Ill., local chairman; Mrs. Leslie Black, New York City, credentials chairman; Mrs. Robert Walker, Baltimore, Md., resolutions chairman; Miss Gladys Houston Greiner and Miss Florence Elizabeth Kennard, finance chairmen.

Chevy Chase Woman Is National Treasurer

Mrs. Raymond L. Suppes of Chevy Chase was elected national treasurer of Alpha Chi Omega, international women's fraternity, at its twenty-third convention recently held at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec. Mrs. William H. Cravens of Bethesda was the retiring national treasurer.

Mrs. J. Carney Howell, president of the alumnae chapter in the Washington area, represented the chapter as its delegate and Miss Alice Wakefield, prominent in Government circles in Washington, acted as the official recorder for the convention. Mrs. Paul Keim, also of the local alumnae chapter, had charge of all convention music.

Washington members, serving as official hostesses during one day of the convention under chairmanship of Mrs. Clyde V. Finter, included Mrs. James T. Jardine, Mrs. Boyd M. Brosius, Mrs. Albert E. Conradis, Mrs. Clara Crouch, Mrs. Gaines H. Gough, Mrs. Leroy C. Brown, Mrs. J. W. Harrill, and the Misses Mary Fae Finter, Marjorie Davis Rebecca Holmes, Margaret Beebe, Joanne Lear, Martha Alexander, Dorothy Perkins and Marjorie Hall.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you tell me the names of books, magazines or other sources from which I can obtain information on constructing outdoor fireplaces or barbecue pits?
M. M.

"The Sunset Barbecue Cook Book," sold by several local book shops, tells how to build various types of outdoor fireplaces and barbecue pits. The Washington Post carried instructions for building such a fireplace, Sunday, June 29, this year, in Section V, and an article entitled "How to Build an Outdoor Grill" appeared in the June, 1947, "House and Garden" magazine.

How can I remove marks made by glasses and similar stains from the top of a walnut dresser?

If the surface of the dresser is waxed, remove the old wax with liquid wax and apply a fresh coat. For other finishes, rub with rottenstone or powdered pumice mixed with linseed oil or lemon oil. Be sure to rub in the direction of the grain. It may also be possible to remove these stains by rubbing with a cloth dampened in water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

We wish to adopt a little boy as soon as possible and would like to have the names of adoption agencies in Washington and vicinity. Is there a local Catholic adoption agency?

The Catholic Charities of Washington, at 1441 Rhode Island ave. nw., is a licensed adoption agency and arranges for the adoption of Catholic children throughout the Washington area. Among other licensed adoption agencies in this city are the Children's Protective Association, at 1907 S st. nw., and the District of Columbia Board of Public Welware, at 470 Indiana ave. nw.

I want to pack a light blue silk coat away for two or three years. How should I wrap it to keep it from fading? Also, how should I wrap a batiste christening dress to preserve it through the years and keep it white? M. O. D.

Make sure the coat and dress are as clean as possible before storing them away. The batiste dress should be unstarched, unblued, and unironed. Fold the garments with as few creases as possible and place crushed tissue paper inside the folds. Wrap each garment well in tissue paper, then with wrapping paper.

What can be used on a voile dress so that it will retain its stiffness after washing? D. J.

Gum arabic (which can be purchased in drug stores) is excellent for restoring the stiffness to thin materials that become limp and unattractive when washed. Add 1 pint of boiling water to 1 ounce of powdered gum arabic and stir over low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute with 2 or 3 quarts of lukewarm water according to the stiffness desired in the material. Use this solution as your last rinse after washing.

Big Stem Looks Over Ford Play

By Richard L. Coe

NEWS DEPARTMENT: Playwright James Gow (with Arnaud d'Usseau, author of "Deep Are the Roots") in town with ANTA's Henry Butler to see Catholic University's "Kingdom of the Blind" . . . Both much impressed with Frank Ford's play, vitality of which was reflected in luncheon conversation that was unusually lively . . . Butler in hopes of luring New York Critic Richard Watts down to see this fascinating drama of diabolical possession next week and we hope he succeeds . . . Argument generally spun around role of psychiatrist: is Ford's Dr. Sturkrop convincing enough or does he fall too easily a victim of his conscience? . . . One thing should be clarified about Ford's play: You need not be a Roman Catholic to find it interesting . . . Matter of fact this beautifully written script is the finest to appear at Catholic University in a long time . . . You'd do well to see it . . . Gow later lectured this page's other reviewer's (Leo Brady) class in drama criticism, his main point being, he told us, that the reviewers don't have enough time to consider plays in the face of deadlines . . . Very right.

REAL ESTATE DEPARTMENT: "The Chocolate Soldier" moves into the National September 8, first stop on a Nation-wide tour . . . As he did in the 69-performance New York run, Billy Gilbert, the movie comic, will play Colonel Popoff . . . This is fundamentally Shaw's "Arms and the Man" with music by Oscar Straus . . . "My Hero," remember?

ATOMIC ENERGY: The Capitol's Sue Ryan comes under this heading . . . We didn't get space yesterday morning to remind you that this socko performer is headlining the stage show for the screen's "Ghost and Mrs. Muir." Sue is a wonderfully invigorating lass with a song, though invigorating may strike you as a peculiar adjective for such . . . The Cap also has another clever "single" act, George Prentice, who reminds you that the Punch and Judy shows of history still have a pack of appeal . . . WOL's Bob Knight, "The Man Behind the Band," does a novel stint with Sam Jack Kaufman's orchestra, the Juvelys balance and the Stuarts—Richard and Flora—dance.

SHOPPING COLUMN: The Little is adding "Laura" to bolster James Mason in "They Met in the Dark," which, until "Laura" arrived, is evidently what it would have been easy for two people to do at the Little with only themselves to know . . . "The Magic Bow," with Yehudi Menuhin backstopping Stewart Granger's violin, begins its second week today at the Hippodrome . . . This morning's Children's Film Library matinee is at the Sheridan at 10 . . . "Two Thoroughbreds," with Jimmy Lydon, is the flick and a quarter gets young and old a seat.

SOCIETY DEPT.: A mahvallus pahty . . . At two in the morning . . . In the Ambassador pool . . . Green, blue and white birthday cakes matching the water . . . All "Oklahoma!" was there in the most glittering suntans, properly wrapped, to be sure . . . As a double surprise for George Lawrence, who dances Curly in the ballet sequences, and Richard Krueger, of the company . . . In honor of their two-days-apart twenty-fourth birthdays . . . Showfolk, always on the move away from home, always stick together, but "Oklahoma's!" youngsters even more than most . . . More like a college fraternity party than you might think and, believe us, no drinking . . . You have to keep fit to go through their gyrations nightly and these folks do . . . Dancers Betty Philipp and Nancy Hachenberg arranged the fete and everyone saw to it Chicago's George and St. Louis' Rich were surprised . . . And surprised they were . . . Which made everyone, including this gate-crasher, grin like gremlins.

RADIO DEPT.: Chester A. Rhodes reminds us that he'll be interviewing Playwright-Dramatist Guildsman George Middleton on his noon program over WGAY today . . . They'll talk more about Middleton's new book, "These Things Are Mine," which we reviewed here last week.

MISSING PERSONS: Alan Campbell, where are you? . . . You just drifted away from that Georgetown party without giving this paper's Alfred Friendly a clew to where you're living . . . Is that any way for a successful scriptwriter to treat an old Army pal, even if some VIPs don't like him?

CHEESECAKE A LA SCHNOZZOLA: Jimmy Durante knows that one sure way to getchapitcha in the paper is a glamorous pose. Like this for Metro's "This Time For Keeps"

Eric Johnston Welcomes Film Competition From Europeans

Five weeks in 11 European countries, some behind the iron curtain, have convinced Eric Johnston that America is going to have a lot of film competition. And he thinks that's fine.

The Motion Picture Association boss returned yesterday with the print of a Polish film for President Truman, which he hopes to "steal" from the Chief Executive so he can show it to film executives on the coast. As a result of voluminous notes kept by sleepless Secretary Merrie Smith, Johnston hopes to recommend that Hollywood produce "more realistic films."

The Polish film, made by Film Polski, the government film monopoly, is "Warsaw Dead, Warsaw Lives and Warsaw in the Spring." He characterized it as a splendid atmospheric film, not precisely a documentary but without any particular story line. Its chances of being shown in this country rest entirely with the exhibitors.

Want U. S. Exhibition

Foreign countries, Johnston reported, are most anxious to show their pictures in the United States. Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Switzerland, France, England and Belgium are accelerating their studio activity and as a result many more people are conscious of the film.

The Johnston party had seen rushes on a Soviet film in Prague and Johnston went out of his way to pay tribute to the artistic ability of the Russians, welcoming this activity and ability as "a good thing for us."

"Competition broadens the market, I've always found in any business," the MPA chief declared. "It increases demand and improves the product."

Old U. S. Films

Hunger for American films is stronger than ever behind the Iron Curtain. The Johnston party attended a theater for a trade union's showing of "Springtime in the Rockies," which Sonia Henie and John Payne made in 1942. They reported the audience appeared charmed with what was, after all, a purely escapist musical. Most American films being shown on the continent today are several years old, with "Going My Way," one of the current successes.

On the other hand, English theaters are now showing many films that are current in American cities today. The "ad valorem" tax worked out by Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton is one of Johnston's more immediate headaches and he hopes within a month to offer some sort of substitute plan for American films being shown in Britain.

"Film are a habit," Johnston concluded "and the habit is growing, just as it should. The more films each nation makes and the easier we can make the exchange problem, the better all films will be."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congress Had Its Ears Turned to Lobbyists

By Drew Pearson

As the first session of the Eightieth Congress comes to an end, there will be the usual hoopla, back-slapping, cloakroom quaffing and singing of the Star-Spangled Banner. But as far as the general public is concerned, there is little to get up and wave the flag about.

Wolcott

This newsman, who has covered Washington for a long time, regrets to say that he has never seen a Congress so dominated by lobbies, and with its ear so eagerly to the ground to catch the faintest whisper of desire from the big contributors who ponied up the campaign funds. Out of a dozen Congresses I have seen come and go—some good, some bad, some indifferent—never since the Harding days has there been a Congress which so flagrantly flouted its promises and its principles.

Here is the scorecard of what the Eightieth Congress did and what it did not accomplish:

HOUSING—Congress did a lot of talking but no acting on the housing shortage. Veterans who once lived in foxholes continued living with their in-laws. Thanks largely to Jesse Wolcott, Michigan Republican, Congress removed priorities for veterans' housing and gave the green light to bowling alleys, roller coasters, skating rinks, race tracks and all commercial construction.

Thanks to Senator Tobey, New Hampshire Republican, the Senate Banking Committee reported favorably, April 24, on the Taft-Ellender Housing Bill which would have been of great aid to veterans. But though Taft was author of this far-sighted bill, he did nothing to push it. And since Taft's word is close to law in the Senate, he probably could have passed it.

RENTS—Under the guise of continuing rent control, Congress gave landlords the benefit of a "gunpoint" 15 per cent "voluntary" rent increase which materially boosted the cost of living.

REAL-ESTATE LOBBY—Every Washington newsman knew how flagrantly the real-estate lobby swarmed over Capitol Hill. Yet when President Truman urged its investigation, several Senators, notably Bricker of Ohio and Revercomb of West Virginia, denounced him and claimed the lobby didn't exist.

MONOPOLY AND SMALL BUSINESS—When the White House urged legislation to curb monopoly and to aid small business, Congress proceeded instead to introduce and pass through one House: 1, the Bulwinkle Bill giving the railroads exemption from the antitrust laws; 2, the Rizley Bills, exempting the big gas companies from certain types of regulation by the Federal Power Commission. Congressman Miller, Connecticut Republican, also came near securing passage of two bills exempting the power companies from Federal Power Commission regulation, while Congressman Jones of Ohio, now appointed to the FCC, inserted a rider preventing the Government from distributing the electric power generated at Bonneville Dam, Grand Coulee and other Federal projects.

EDUCATION—While school teachers were quitting by the thousands in almost every State in the Union, Congress stalled for six long months on a bill to help the States increase teachers pay. In the end it passed nothing.

FARM PROGRAM—While the private power lobby was introducing nonregulation bills in the House of Representatives, the Republican leaders in the House slashed appropriations for rural electrification, also for soil conservation, crop insurance and other vital parts of the farm program. This caused a split inside Republican ranks with many Midwestern Republicans differing from their leaders. Finally the Senate, harassed by Democratic Senator Russell of Georgia, restored a large part of the farm cuts.

State, School Board Get Wilson Hospital

Virginia to Use 52 Buildings for Training, Rehabilitation; County 106 for Education

Richmond, Va., July 25 (AP).—The six-million-dollar Woodrow Wilson General Hospital, located near Staunton, was transferred to the State of Virginia and the Augusta School Board today when final papers were signed in the office of Governor Tuck.

Charles J. Blair, jr., War Assets Administration deputy zone administrator for real property disposal, in presenting the deeds to the Governor, compared the record of the hospital during the war years with the plans of the State to operate the institution for educational and rehabilitation purposes.

Total property transferred today without cost to the State included 158 buildings, about 400 acres of land and equipment such as utilities, telephone system, fire equipment and personal property valued at more than $300,000.

School Board Shares Title

Under the public benefit allowance clause of the Surplus Property Act, the Commonwealth and Augusta County School Board received title to the hospital for considerations other than cash.

The benefits, including both real and personal property, Blair explained, will materialize in the execution of the proposed plans of the State to use the hospital as a vocational training and rehabilitation center.

Augusta County will use a portion of the property for a consolidated high school by incorporating four county high schools.

In accepting the deeds to the hospital, Governor Tuck expressed his appreciation "of the responsibility incumbent upon us to utilize this property to the fullest possible extent for the public welfare."

20,000 Treated There

"This we propose to do through the operation of vocational and rehabilitation services, which will be of untold benefit to considerable numbers of our citizens. In addition, the county of Augusta will have their facilities for a consolidated high school which will provide new educational advantages for many families of that section of the State."

Completed in September, 1943, at a cost of more than six million dollars, the hospital treated more than 20,000 patients until it was closed in April, 1946.

Fifty-two buildings and 270 acres of land will be used by the State as a rehabilitation center, while the county proposes to use 56 buildings, 33 acres of land as a vocational school and 43 buildings and 86 acres of land as a high school. Seven additional buildings which house the utilities will be operated by the Commonwealth.

Three Men Slug Gas Station Attendant and Loot Till of $26

A 22-year-old Laurel, Md., gas station attendant was slugged and knocked unconscious early yesterday by three men who then rifled the cash register and escaped with about $26.

Victim of the attack was Tommy Shaw of Jessups, night attendant at the station, adjacent to the garage of Mid-City Chevrolet Sales, 42 Washington blvd. He apparently was struck with a lead pipe which was found at the scene of the robbery, Maryland State police said.

Shaw said the three men drove into the station at about 5 a. m. and asked for gas. Two of the men headed for the restroom, he said. As he started to service the car, the third struck him over the head.

Shaw was found unconscious a few minutes later by a Laurel cab driver who drove into the station for gas. After police were notified, the attendant was taken to the office of a nearby physician, where he was treated for lacerations of the scalp.

The car was described as a 1936 Chevrolet bearing Maryland tags, but Shaw failed to obtain the tag number. He furnished police with a description of the three, all of whom he said were Negroes.

State police immediately broadcast a lookout for the men and the automobile.

Bandwagon Stars

10,000 See Firemen in Big Parade

Frederick, Md., July 25.—More than 10,000 persons watched the parade competition last night which closed the two-day Frederick County Volunteer Firemen's Association meeting here.

Judges unanimously agreed that the outstanding feature of the parade was the antique horse-drawn bandwagon that once carried the old American Band of Middletown on similar occasions.

The 75-year-old vehicle, brought out of retirement on a farm near Middletown last spring, was cleaned and renovated. It won several prizes at Williamsport, Md., and Waynesboro, Pa., parades.

On the bandwagon in each competition, a "Little Dutch Band," comprised of Frederick County musicians, garbed in the raiment of the gay nineties, played sprightly marches and other favorites.

Last night the Williamsport, Md., company won the $75 grand prize for the best-appearing company with a band and drum corps. Other winners among the 20 companies and six musical organizations competing were:

Best-appearing company without band and drum corps, Always There Hook and Ladder Co., Waynesboro, Pa., $35 prize; second, Westphal Fire Co., Martinsburg, W. Va., $20.

Company with the most men in line—Always There Co., $35.

Company coming the longest distance—Westphal Co., $35.

Best-appearing ladies auxiliary—Westphal Co. Auxiliary, $25.

Best-appearing band or drum corps—Moose Drum Corps, Hagerstown, Md., $75.

Woman Tells How She Shot Ex-Husband

Princess Anne, Md., July 25 (AP). Mrs. Laura Wilkins Laughery, 27, admitted during a habeas corpus hearing in Somerset County Circuit Court today that she shot and killed her divorced husband last Friday morning when he walked into her father's home near Pocomoke City.

The comely brunette was on the stand more than an hour as the court heard her plea for release from the county jail, where she has been held without bond since the slaying.

Timothy W. Laughery, 35-year-old chicken grower, died of five bullet wounds at the home of his father-in-law, J. Archie Wilkins, prominent Eastern Shore hatcheryman.

Mrs. Laughery said today she shot him because he freightened her when he walked into the kitchen. She said she bought a .32 Spanish-type pistol for protection. She identified it as the gun she used.

The Laugherys were divorced July 5 after the wife and her father had sworn out a warrant against Laughery, charging him with breaking into the Wilkins home and assaulting them.

$2500 in Prizes To Be Given at Firemen's Parade

Charles Town, W. Va., July 25 (AP).—Cash prizes totaling $2500 will be distributed to competing units in a parade during the nineteenth annual convention of the West Virginia State Firemen's Association here August 23-30, sponsors announced today.

West Virginia units will receive prizes based on the size of the parading units, the distance traveled, for the best-appearing band and the best-appearing drum corps.

Similar prizes will be distributed to out-of-State units, and there will be an award for the best-appearing fire truck in the parade.

The parade will be staged Saturday afternoon as the climax of the three-day meeting. Business sessions and social events are planned for Thursday and Friday.

Layoffs Put 800 More in Md. on Relief

Annapolis, Md., July 25 (AP).—Another 800 persons were added to the State unemployment compensation rolls last week because of temporary layoffs resulting from lack of work.

Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Department of Employment Security, reported to Governor Lane today the new unemployed were laid off by 12 firms.

In the preceding week 1000 workers were put out of jobs temporarily because of vacations and lack of work. Veterans' readjustment allowances showed a slight increase for the same reasons.

In the counties 5028 checks were paid out totaling $81,348; in Baltimore 10,488 checks totaling $188,401 and out-of-State claimants received 847 checks totaling $17,375.

Veterans in the counties receive 2697 checks totaling $53,636 and in Baltimore 4,911 checks, totaling $97,859.

The State reserve at the end of the week was $117,169,077.

J. B. Bywaters Dies, Sheriff In Winchester

Winchester, Va., July 25 (AP).—John B. Bywaters, 65, sheriff of Frederick County for the past nine years, died today at his home here from a heart attack.

He had gone to his office in the courthouse and was attending to routine business when he complained of feeling ill and returned to his home. A physician was called but the sheriff failed to respond to treatment and died in a short time.

Bywaters was appointed sheriff in 1938 to succeed the late William Newcome, who was killed while making an arrest, and had bbeen reelected twice since then. He was the Democratic nominee for renomination in the primary next week in which he was unopposed.

The sheriff was a native of Frederick County, the son of the late Joseph and Annie Glaize Bywaters. He was a member of the Virginia Sheriffs Association, local Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen of America, Frederick County Game and Fish Protective Association and had been active in Democratic politics in Frederick County for a number of years.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Lucy Dodson Bywaters, three daughters and two sons by a former marriage. He was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Opequon. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Sunday at Opequon.

Judge Elliott Marshall today called a special session of the Frederick court for early Sunday afternoon at the court at Winchester when a memorial by Bywaters is to be presented.

Laundry Worker Held in Slaying Of Ship Captain

Baltimore, July 25 (AP).—Police today held a 25-year-old laundry worker charged with the fatal shooting of a ship's captain outside a bar early Thursday morning and his wife was listed as a witness.

William C. Port, the laundryman, pleaded innocent when arraigned before a police magistrate and was ordered held without bail pending a preliminary hearing.

The charge against him was in connection with the death of Harry A. Anderson, Liberty ship master and a veteran of the dangerous run to Murmansk, Russia, during the war. Anderson died in a hospital several hours after the shooting with a bullet wound below the heart.

Water Front Farmette

Here are 3 beautiful farmettes containing 3 and 4 acres facing on Buckner's Creek at the intersection of the Potomac River in historic West Moreland County. They are a part of Bushfield, the home of John Augustine Washington, which has been subdivided into small gentleman estates. Each contains brand-new bungalows with large living rooms, fireplaces; Youngstown kitchens, bath, electric pumps, Artesian wells; large screened porches; right on the water where duck hunting, fishing, crabbing abound. These houses are priced to sell at $6,750 and $7,750, including everything. Good roads and electricity. Bushfield is 100 miles from Washington and you cannot commute, and I prefer to sell them to retired middle-aged people or disabled veterans, where you don't have to depend on a job, locally. All previous sales have been made to retired people who wish to live in a charming countryside where living is simple and inexpensive. All of them are beautifully wooded and you can get in this year.

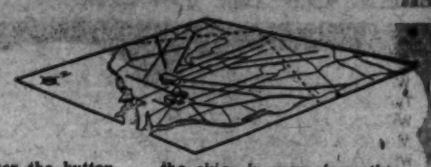
"Stop Press" Command Brings Prompt Results



One of the fellows who works on the business end of The Washington Post was showing a friend through the building.

When they got to the press-room, our man had to yell at the top of his lungs to be heard above the roar of the machinery.

"Now if this were the movies," he bellowed, "we would holler 'Stop the presses! Tear out page 1.'"

The words had no sooner left his mouth than the giant presses ground to a dead stop. The two visitors began to feel very uncomfortable, and looked at each other with growing consternation.

You can imagine their relief when they discovered that the unheard "stop press" order had been shouted at the precise moment when the press run had been concluded.

INFORMATION PLEASE

Eleanor M. Haight, of 214 Massachusetts ave. ne., writes:

"I'm looking for a good place to get Mexican food. Not just chili, but tacos, guacamole salad, enchiladas, etc. If you help me find such a place I will be very grateful and will continue to read your column every day."

Will you District Liners please send Eleanor the desired information right away?

Readers don't grow on trees, you know—and I don't want to lose any.

WARNING

My favorite bank teller whispers that there are a flock of counterfeit $20 bills floating around Washington.

He says that they're very clever copies, and that the easiest way to spot them is to look for a smudge near the bottom of the reverse side (which pictures the White House).

The smudge is under the word "twenty."

YEAH—NAME A FEW

Marion Galletly, of the applied physics lab at Johns Hopkins University, wants to know why the really good movies that hit Washington usually disappear after a week.

What good movies, Marion? The last good one I can recall was "All Quiet On The Western Front."

ANOTHER GRIPE

"Etaoin Shrdlu" follows my complaint about unremovable dry cleaning tags with this:

"Even if you found a cleaner who didn't fuse the identification tag to your pants, you'd still have to locate a laundryman who doesn't cement that loose facing over the buttonholes of your shirt—thereby making it necessary to pierce new holes with an awl before you can button the fool thing."

And how about the laundries which use so much starch that you've just got to slit open the pockets of your shirt before you can use them?

ANCIENT HISTORY

John E. Hoffman, of 3605 20th st. ne., suggests that we organize a "Fraternity of the Flying Saucer."

A few weeks ago, when the crockery was flying through the skies in mass formation, we could have had a lot of fun with that idea, John.

But by how the flying saucers are just memories—like the Newburyport Plan.

BOSTON REVISITED

We recently carried a revised version of "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here," with the naughty words deleted. The heading on the item read, "Boston Version."

Arthur Hall, of 404 S. Pitt st., Alexandria, Va., offers what he terms "the real Boston version:"

Rejoice, rejoice, the multitude's assembled,
Why should we concern ourselves?
Why should we concern ourselves?
Rejoice, rejoice, the multitude's asembled,
Why should we concern ourselves at present?

Movie Colony on Wing These Days

Hollywood—They fly through the air here, if not with the greatest of ease, at least in their own private planes. Sinatra has his own plane and is learning to fly it. Paul Lukas is a veteran at it. And Dick Powell owns a fleet of planes. Powell, now making a movie at Columbia, spends his weekends flying to Palm Springs, San Diego and other places nearby. Harry Cohn, head of Columbia Pictures, ordered Powell to stop flying until he's finished making the movie, because an accident might necessitate a remaking of the picture. Cohn reminded him of the investment at stake and of the number of private plane accidents. "If that's an ultimatum," Powell told him, "get another actor" . . . Cohn stared at him, and then shrugged: "Okay. In that case will you fly me to Palm Springs this Sunday?"

Dick Powell

Reeves Lewenthal, head of the Associated American Artists, just returned from a tour of Europe. During his stay in Paris he visited the American Embassy and asked for the issuance of a visa to permit Pablo Picasso to come to America for a short visit. The Embassy reminded Mr. Lewenthal that while Picasso unquestionably is one of the great artists of the world he also is an avowed French Communist.

"We possibly could issue the visa to him," the Embassy suggested, "if you will guarantee that while he is in America Picasso will refrain from any political activities." . . . Lewenthal declined to assume the responsibility, explaining "How can anyone ever dare guarantee the behavior of an artist?"

Lewenthal stopped in Finland for a few hours and when he concluded his business he asked the customs official who had changed his dollars into Finnish marks to reconvert the marks into dollars. The official ruled not only that this couldn't be done but also that he could not take the Finnish marks out of the country. Lewenthal, about to rush for the plane, told the customs official: "In that case I will leave the money with you, and I want it ear-marked for posies to be sent to 'the nicest girl at the American Legation in Helsinki.'"

A few days later, at his hotel in the Balkans, Lewenthal received a thanks-for-the-flowers note from Miss Mary Pikanen, cultural officer at the Legation in Helsinki.

George S. Kaufman heard that one of his old plays was being presented at a nearby summer resort without permission. Kaufman confronted the bootleg play producer who explained: "Oh, it's such a small, insignificant theater." Kaufman nodded and replied: "So you'll go to a small, insignificant jail." The American Academy of Political Arts and Sciences is devoting the fall issue of its magazine to the economic and social aspects of the film industry. Skousras, Selznick and Floyd Odlum are contributing articles. Rosalind Russell has signed Leo Rosten to write "The Velvet Touch," which will star Miss Russell, Sydney Greenstreet and Leo Genn. Joe Mankiewicz, the producer, flew to Europe last week and sent wireless en route to report to his colleagues. Ernst Lubitsch studied the series of dispatches and said: "He will change the latitude of the Azores."

Chicago, July 25 (AP).—United Air Lines announced today it had purchased 200 radar altimeters and would begin installation of the safety equipment on all its airliners within a few months.

The radar altimeter is an electronic device which warns the pilot by signal lights of the proximity of the ground as well as other obstacles in his path. It has an effective range of some 8000 feet below and ahead of the plane.

Increase in Prices Predicted If Credit Buying Controls End

By the United Press

Bonnar Brown, assistant director of the Federal Reserve Board's security loans division, yesterday predicted another price rise in consumer durable goods if Congress kills installment buying controls on November 1, as expected.

Compromise legislation to end time-payment buying controls on such things as automobiles, radios and refrigerators on that date was passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Senate. Speedy approval appeared certain there and the act was expected to be on President Truman's desk before Congress adjourns tonight.

Mr. Truman then will have two choices. He can sign the bill and retain the controls until the end of October, just prior to the Christmas buying rush, or he can carry out his promise of last June when he said he would use his wartime authority to lift them if Congress refused to grant his request that they be continued indefinitely.

Drops Down Payments

The bill provides that after November 1 consumers no longer would have to make a down payment of at least one third on such items as automobiles and similar durable goods, and complete their payments within 15 months. It also tosses overboard the requirement that purchasers of certain types of furniture make a down payment of 20 per cent and make full payment in 15 months.

Mr. Truman has opposed elimination of the controls as an inflationary step, but he may feel that a mere three months extension would be ineffective.

Brown contended that there will be less incentive to hold present price levels when consumers no longer are required to make a down payment of at least one third on credit purchases. In addition, he said interest charges are certain to go up as the payment periods are lengthened.

Bill Result of Conference

The House originally voted to throw the controls out immediately. The Senate voted to continue them until January 1 on a modified basis and the final version of the bill was worked out in a Senate-House conference.

Brown said that with the controls gone the higher prices which he anticipates will mean a marked increase in the dollar volume of sales during the Christmas season.

The Federal Reserve Board also is concerned by the problem of enforcing the regulations between now and whatever time they are dropped. Board officials are afraid that merchants will become lax in seeing that the controls are carried out.

Some banking sources however, predicted that in most cases the present down payment requirement of 33 1/3 per cent will be maintained by many merchants as sound business.

Brown said "there is a good likelihood that prices will go up all along the line in consumer goods." He believed that, in the case of automobiles, prices would not come down so fast as they would if controls were maintained.

Automobile finance companies, industrial banks and others dealing principally in consumer credit have kept up a steady fight against the controls.

U. S. Gets 312 Acres For Atom Laboratory

Chicago, July 25 (U.P.).—Federal Judge William J. Campbell today signed condemnation proceedings enabling the Government to take possession of 312 acres of land near Chicago in Du Page County, Ill., for construction of the Argonne atomic laboratory.

Immediately after the court proceedings, it was announced that construction of the laboratory, which will be one of the Nation's principal atomic energy research centers, will begin next month.

Calcutta, India, July 25 (U.P.).—Seven persons, including one policeman, died today of injuries received yesterday when coal workers mobbed a powerhouse at Loyabad, in Bihar province. Today's deaths brought total casualties in the incident to 13.

Woman Victim of Strangler Will Be Buried in Arlington

Leonardtown, Md., July 25 (Spl). As plans were made here tonight for the funeral of Mrs. Frank Katona, Navy officer's wife found strangled after a poker game in a Tall Timbers cabin, medical officials disclosed that she "had not been raped."

Dr. Frank F. Greenwell, St. Marys County medical examiner, said a laboratory test produced that finding.

Meanwhile, at the Robinson funeral home here it was said funeral services for Mrs. Katona will be held Monday at 11 a. m. in the Fort Myer (Va.) Chapel and burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

C. Henry Camalier, State's attorney, said no date has been definitely set for the arraignment and hearing of Joseph Daniel Brouillette, 22-year-old seaman of Manchester, N. H., held in the county jail charged with the murder of Mrs. Katona. He is reported to have said he did not remember what happened.

Camalier said he is continuing questioning of Brouillette and others present at the card game which preceded the death of Mrs. Katona.

Comdr. C. S. Minter, public relations officer of the Naval Air Station at Patuxent River, said he "understood" Brouillette's wife was en route here from Manchester. He said Navy records indicated he was married April 30 to Marjorie Ann White, a Federal Government worker, then residing at Arlington Farms.

The station's Catholic chaplain, Lieut. S. A. Mroczka, visited Brouillette yesterday and today at the latter's request, Commander Minter said.

U. S. Seeking To Foil Sharks On GI Bonds

By The Associated Press

The Treasury hopes to foil the "sharks" who have clipped veterans by buying up GI terminal leave bonds at a discount.

A top official said yesterday that every effort will be made to stop them from cashing the bonds when and if President Truman signs the bill making the bonds cashable after September 1.

"We will not permit these sharks to realize gains out of victimizing veterans," he told a reporter privately.

To prevent it, the Treasury is preparing regulations forbidding payment to anyone except the veterans in whose names the bonds were made out.

Payment will be made through the banks. And they will be instructed to require positive identification—display of discharge papers, if necessary—to make sure that the bonds are not cashed by someone other than the original owner.

If the banks are properly alert—and neglect will be at their own risk—the Treasury said it believes it can stop illegal buyers from getting any money at all.

Numerous reports of cut-rate cashing have been received in Washington.

Mostly, complaints have come from veterans relating that, hard-pressed for quick cash, they endorsed their bonds over to persons who paid them only 50 to 80 cents on the dollar of bond value.

Other complaints are that merchants have taken the bonds in—not always at a discount—in payment on veterans' purchases.

The law, however, forbids transfer of ownership of the bonds and also protects them against levy or seizure under legal process. More than $1,800,000,000 of the bonds are outstanding and there is no way of knowing how many have been "bought" illegally.

President Truman is widely expected to sign the "bond cash" act into law in view of its unanimous passage in both Houses.

When the bonds were issued to compensate for earned but unused leave time, they were not to be cashed until five years after the date of a veteran's discharge.

Big Generator Bursts, Kills Girl, Injures 5

Pittsburgh, July 25 (U.P.).—A girl was killed and five other workers were injured today when a giant 6-ton generator whirling at 1100 revolutions a minute burst apart with a terrifying roar and sent heavy steel fragments hurtling through the plant and the roof of the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

An 800-pound steel generator pole arched 300 feet across a busy street and smashed into the front of a hotel, knocking out the wall of the fourth floor. It then dropped into the street, breaking a water main. Miraculously, persons in the street and hotel escaped injury. Crushed to death when hit by flying steel was Helen Chizmar.
